Kentucky's State Patrol Head Reveals 3rd Attempt on Life of Chief Executive.

DRINKING WATER BLAMED

Police in Louisville Where Barkley's Favored Scoff at Doctor's Claims.

(By United Press)

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Insisting that Governor A. B. Chandler's current illness is the result of an attempt to poison him, Major Joseph Burman, head of the state bureau of identification, said today that it was the third such attempt against the governor's life.

One other such attempt was made at a roadside stand near Covington, and a second at Harlan, Maj. Burman said. The governor became ill last Friday in a Louisville hotel and Dr. J. W. Bryan, hotel physician, said he thought poison had been put in Chandler's drinking water. Louisville police said they found no basis for this assertion.

Stricken After Address.

The governor was stricken by a stomach ailment Friday after he had completed a radio broadcast from his suite in a Louisville hotel. The illness had been diagnosed as indigestion. Yesterday, Dr. Bryan, resident physician of the hotel, where Chandler maintains his headquarters, said in a notarized statement:

"The governor is a victim of poisoned water," he said. "I do not know what kind of poison it was, but a quantity would have caused death I presume it was administered by an outside party."

Maj. Joseph Burman, head of the state bureau of investigation, who has charge of Chandler's bodyguard, disagreed with the Louisville police department's finding and announced that the state highway patrol would make a thorough investigation.

Opposes Chandler.

The Louisville department is controlled by a Democratic city administration which is opposing Chandler in his campaign for the U. S. senatorial nomination in opposition to Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley. The primary will be held Aug. 6.

Sgts. Tom Shouse, J. W. Stevenson and Jack Hughes, of the Louisville police, conferred with Dr. Bryan at his hotel early today. Later they issued a statement which said:

"We do not believe that Dr. Bryan has any factual basis for his affidavit which states that the governor was poisoned in an attempt on his life. We are at a loss to understand why Dr. Bryan or the governor did not come to us before this time."

5 MORE SLAIN

New Disorders Follow Riot Deaths of 65 in Holy Land.

HAIFA, Palestine — (AP) — Five persons were killed today in the holy land's Arab-Jewish racial warfare which took 65 lives in Haifa yesterday.

Greater loss of life was averted when police found a time bomb in the crowded Arab vegetable market of old Jerusalem just in time to prevent an explosion.

Three members of a terrorist band were slain in a battle with special constables whom they had attacked.

A Jewish father and his 14-year-old son were killed when they were ambushed on the banks of the Jordan river near the Syrian frontier.

Cincy Prosecutor Says High Officials Protect Gambling.

CINCINATNI—(INS)—The Hamilton county grand jury today continued its investigation into charges made by County Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt that a slot machine ring exists in the county under the protection of high officials.

Twenty-six witnesses appeared before the jury at its first session and several more were under subpoena to testify today.

FIGHT TYPHOID

Texas Community Hit By New Peril During Floods.

SAN SABA, Tex.—(U.P.)—Additional rainfall and an outbreak of typhoid fever added new peril today to hundreds of persons who normally live along the banks of the rampaging San Saba and Colorado rivers. More than 13 inches of rain has fallen since Saturday.

Rescue workers using a dozen boats removed 200 persons from the isolated community of Bend, 20 miles southeast of San Saba.

That, at least, is said to be the reason why Davis has been released almost daily from the Tombs prison, to go to his doctor's office—and also visit Miss Dare. She is said to have promised District Attorney Thomas Dewey she would get Davis to "talk" if Dewey permitted Davis to visit her. Davis is shown, inset.

OFFICIALS 'AT SEA' ON LEVY

Does Proposed Relief Tax Require Majority or 65 Per Cent Vote? That's Question.

City and county officials today were "at sea" over the question of whether the two relief levies—a proposed two-mill assessment in Mansfield, and a one-mill assessment in Madison township—need a 65 per cent vote of approval or whether only a majority is required to pass.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley took issue with the generally accepted opinion thata 65 per cent vote was necessary for the levies to pass.

"It is an operating levy and therefore requires only a majority vote," Kelley asserted.

He based his opinion on changes made recently in the uniform bond act, which, he said, allowed municipalities to file for a majority vote on an operating levy.

G. C. Balliet, chairman of the board of elections who was not certain just what vote was needed, said the county prosecutor was the board's authority on the question.

"I am however, more agreed with Kelley on the question," Balliet said.

However, Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott was of the opinion that the 65 per cent vote was necessary to carry the levy. While he was "too busy" to look into the matter this morning, he based his opinion, he said, on the fact that the levy was outside the 10-mill limitation.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe who believes a majority vote is required, pointed out however, that the resolutions on file with his office did not specify under what section of the state code the levy was being asked.

"The resolutions could be filed under two sections of the code and I am of the opinion that the city and township both considered a majority vote when the petitions were drawn up," Wolfe added.

Harold T. Lutz, assistant county prosecutor, who filed the request for the Madison township trustees, and City Solicitor Marion D. Ward could not be reached for a legal opinion on the question.

New Clash Feared As Sympathizers Mass In UAW Case

DETROIT — (INS) — Opening of the trial of four suspended United Automobile Workers vice-presidents on conspiracy and sabotage charges appeared unlikely today when, for the second consecutive day, sympathizers of the ousted officers massed at union headquarters.

Supporters of the ousted vice-presidents, Richard T. Frankensteen, Ed Hall, Wyndham Mortimer and Walter N. Wells demanded they be allowed to sit in at the trial, or that a committee chosen by them be admitted.

A like demand, couple with a show of force, disrupted the trial yesterday and precipitated a day-long sit-down strike in the union offices. The sit-downers and a recruited force of workers, partisans of UAW President Homer Martin, were persuaded to leave the building last night by police.

LACK OF FUNDS SNAGS COUNTY WPA PROGRAM

Only Half 1,390 Eligible for Work Assigned, No More Jobs Open for 30 Days.

SAYS ALLOTMENT USED UP

Only 250 Employed on Million Dollar Project Designed to Give Work to 900.

With less than half of Richland county's 1,390 eligible WPA workers employed on projects, the county's $1,000,000 blanket road, bridge and street project struck a snag today, and the district WPA Engineer James L. Kelly, said there would be no more assignments in the county for at least 30 days.

Kelly, who is sixth district engineer, said the county had used its allotment of funds from Washington, and further assignments will be delayed until more money is allocated or the WPA employment figures drop off as workers are absorbed in private industry.

628 On County WPA Jobs.

Although 662 men are awaiting work relief jobs in the county, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said only 250 had been given employment so far under the $1,000,000 program, while it was anticipated that more than 900 would get jobs. There were 628 persons employed on projects in the county last week, district figures showed.

Besieged with requests for jobs from eligible WPA workers who have not been assigned, Sword said he would go to Columbus within the next two or three days in an atempt to speed the assigning of eligible men to projects.

"We hoped to start from 180 to 200 men on a road construction job in Butler township this week, but we have not been authorized by the state office to go ahead," Sword added.

Based on Relief Needs.

Workers in each of the 20 counties in the Sixth district, which includes Richland county, are assigned by the district office on the basis of the relief needs in the counties, Kelly said.

"We lose about 200 men a week in the Sixth district as workers quit to take other jobs or leave because of illness, and that replacement must be made up from all the counties," Kelly pointed out. "The assignments in each county necessarily are small if we have to depend on replacements alone."

Richland county is below the average in the district in providing WPA jobs, which is due to the

DODGES SNAKE ON CELLAR DOOR

Woman Near Loudonville Narrowly Escapes From Copperhead

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Ethel Sellers, residing south of here on route 97, was still jittery today after her encounter with a copperhead, a variety of poisonous snake which was once a native of this section, but is now rarely seen.

Mrs. Sellers went into her cellar hurriedly the other day and as she passed through the doorway, she instinctively dodged as something struck at her from above. Looking up, she was horrified to see a deadly copperhead hanging from the upper section of the door frame.

Afraid to go out through the door, she crawled through a small cellar window and called for help. A nephew, William Sellers, shot the reptile with a rifle.

Puerto Rico Fills Jails In Search for Assassin

Bullet Hits Trouser Leg of Governor; Three Killed, 29 Hurt.

(By International News Service)

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—With jails rapidly filling, police today scoured the island for every known member of the anti-American Nationalist party as a result of the attempted assassination of Major General Blanton Winship, governor of Puerto Rico.

Three persons were killed and 29 wounded in Ponce when revolutionists fired upon Winship in the worst outbreak ever to occur against American rule.

Within a few hours of the assassination attempt, six well known Nationalists were jailed and police said three or those held had been identified positively as gunmen.

Bullet Hits Trousers.

How narrowly Governor Winship escaped death or injury was illustrated by the fact that a bullet went through his trouser leg when the Rveolutionists fired upon him.

It was believed the incident would lead to strong pressure for passage of a law making the death sentence mandatory as punishment for murder in Puerto Rico at the next session of the legislature.

Swift action by a Puerto Rican detective was believed to have saved Winship's life. The detective, Jua:. Colon, stepped into the line of fire and pushed the 68-year-old American governor to one side on a reviewing stand during a military parade. Colon was wounded seriously.

Among those shot and killed was Col. Luis Irizarry, commander of the 296th United States infantry regiment of the Puerto Rican national guard.

Angel Esteban Antongeorgi, identified as one of the assailants, was shot and killed by Police Chief Enrique Orbeta, the third person killed was believed to have been a bystander who died in a hospital of wounds received during the burst of gunfire.

The ceremonies marred by the shooting affray were in commemoration of American occupation of the island in 1898.

2,000 Pupils March Aug. 5 As Climax to Bond Drive

School Parade 4 Days Before Primary to Include 10 Playground Units, P. T. A. Cars and 2 Bands.

Nearly 2,000 Mansfield school pupils will parade through the city at 4 p. m. Friday, Aug. 5, as their contribution to the campaign for the board of education's proposed $550,000 bond issue for modernization of the city's school buildings.

Plans for the parade, which will climax the Mansfield P. T. A. council's drive for the bond issue, were outlined yesterday at a meeting of a committee headed by Patrolman Frend C. Boals.

Needs 65 Per Cent Majority.

The parade will be staged just four days before the Aug. 9 primary election when the school board will submit its bond issue which needs the approval of the 65 per cent of the voters in the school district to pass.

If the bond issue passes, it will be supplemented by $450,000 in a PWA grant for the construction of two junior high school buildings, a shop building at Senior high school and modernization of eight elementary buildings.

Ten playground groups, delegations from the Junior Red Cross, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., and at least two school bands will participate in the parade, with the playground units competing for two prizes, Boals said.

The line of march will extend

$9,000 BLAZE

Fire Levels Largest Morrow Barn at County Home.

MT. GILEAD—Fire destroyed the main barn at the Morrow county home, east of Mt. Gilead, about 3 a. m. today, causing a loss estimated at $9,000. Origin of the fire had not been determined today.

Discovered by Charles R. Swisher, superintendent of the home, who saw the flames from his room 200 feet from the barn, the blaze had gained so much headway that the Mt. Gilead and Cardington fire departments were unable to bring it under control.

Firemen worked for two hours to protect other buildings nearby. Loss of the barn was covered by insurance.

Destroyed with the barn, the largest in Morrow county, were 60 tons of hay, several tons of straw, and some farm machinery. All livestock was in the pasture.

6 Mayors To Milk Cows At County Fair

Contest Friday to Be One of Highlights of Expo Opening Tomorrow.

While the Richland county fair board prepared for the largest opening day crowd in history when the gates open tomorrow for the first day of the 1938 fair, plans were completed today for an innovation in fair circles—the mayors of six Richland county towns are going to try their hand at milking cows right in front of the grandstand crowds.

The sextet of mayors who have already agreed to participate are: Mayor C. M. Hunter of Mansfield, Mayor D. B. Young of Shelby, Mayor Louis M. Smith of Lucas, Mayor O. G. Misamore of Lexington, Mayor Charles Nelson of Shiloh, and Mayor C. F. Lybarger of Ganges.

Some of them are milkers, and some are not, and that alone assures a fun fest. They will parade before the grandstand, each with a cow picked from the "blue blood" stock on exhibit at the fair. They will give the milking art a twirl on a raised platform in front of the race track grandstand.

While they are at work, Jim Brownscombe, Mansfield microphone artist at such events, will let the crowd know how they are proceeding. He'll tell why some of them are falling behind, why others are leading and just what their shortcomings are. The milking contest is set for 4 p. m. Friday afternoon.

The prize for the winning mayor is something that H. H. Wolf, president of the fair board, is holding a deep secret. "It'll be something, very appropriate," he said in announcing the contest.

* * *

Aerial bombs exploded from the top of the Mansfield-Leland hotel will signal the opening of the fair at 1:30 p. m. and again when the night program begins at 7 p. m.

C. C. Hout, fair board secretary, today said that fair goers will see one of the largest exhibits of livestock, farm machinery, produce and 4-H club work displayed at the fairground in years.

Entry lists were closed at 10

PUSH TO FRONT

70,000 Loyalists Launching Advance on Insurgents.

HENDAYE, FRANCE (AT THE SPANISH FRONTIER)—(AP)— A massed Spanish government army of 70,000 menu surged across the broad Ebro river today in a general advance against insurgent lines along a 93-mile front in southern Catalonia.

The insurgents admitted the militiamen had gained a foothold on the west bank of the stream in Asco-Mora De Ebro sector where three columns drove toward Gandesa, regional insurgent headquarters 14 miles west of the Ebro.

Many insurgent units had been pulled out of the long-quiet area to aid the drive on Valencia to the south, and the government's surprise offensive gave the insurgents a taste of the tactics they used so effectively in southwestern Spain.

ALLOW BRITAIN TO TAKE PART IN CONFERENCE

Government Grants Concessions in Effort to Avert New Crisis With Nazis.

CHAMBERLAIN'S HAND SEEN

Unprecedented Move Regarded as Making Sure Situation Won't Grow Into War.

(By United Press)

LONDON— Czechoslovakia has agreed to negotiate directly with Sudeten German leaders on its minorities problem and to permit a British plenipotentiary to participate in the negotiations, it was understood today.

Under the agreement, Czechoslovakia has promised the British government to postpone enactment of its minorities statute, to deal directly with German minority leaders in an effort to reach a compromise, and to permit Viscount Runciman, former president of the British board of trade, to participate actively in the negotiations, it was said.

Victory for Chamberlain.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was expected to announce the agreement at least in part during a debate on foreign affairs in the house of commons today.

It was a distinct and important victory for Chamberlain in a new effort to provide a diplomatic cushion in the dangerous minorities dispute, a cushion intended to make sure that even if there is a new crisis, it will be a purely diplomatic one and that machinery to assure its peaceful liquidation will have been provided in advance.

It was an almost unprecedented move in diplomacy: to place a prominent British statesman at the disposal of disputant parties of the same nation in a situation which threatened war that might involve all Europe. Runciman is a national liberal—that is, one of the liberals who are co-operating with the conservatives in the government. He was president of the board of trade in the cabinet, and for years had been one of the big men of Great Britain. Last year he inherited his father's viscounty, perforce entered the house of lords and retired from his cabinet post.

Denies Desire For War.

Czechoslovakia's agreement to negotiate directly with the Sudeten Germans were complemented today by an interview published by the Daily Telegraph with Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader. The Telegraph quoted Henlein as saying to a correspondent at Eger:

"I absolutely rule out war as a possible solution of Sudeten difficulties, no matter how negotiations turn out there will not be war so far as we are concerned. We do not want our borderland homes to be converted into battlefields. . .

900 Hear of Need Of School Bonds At Newman Rally

Nearly 900 persons attended an open air rally of the Newman school P. T. A. at Liberty park last night where the proposed $550,000 Mansfield school bond issue was outlined by Dr. John S. Hattery and H. W. Arlin, members of the board of education.

At the same time, Supt. W. L. Miller and two other board members explained the bond issue and $1,000,000 building program to the directors of two city parks and the Hermit club.

Miller talked to the Johns park directors at a session at the park, W. C. Mead, board member, appeared before the Prospect park directors, and H. A. Bruce, another board member, spoke to Hermit club members at the Y. M. C. A. camp on Park avenue west.

The Newman meeting at Liberty park was the largest of any of the P. T. A. rallies in the city. The Senior high school band played a concert preceding the talks, and will play again tonight at a Senior high school P. T. A. meeting at North Lake park.

Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, and Arlin, president of the school board, will speak at tonight's rally.

Public Rally Opening Sales Crusade Moved Back to Aug. 2

Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Put a bright red ring around that date on your calendar for that is the date on which Mansfield business will don its armor and go forth to slay the dragon, Psychological Depression. Originally set for Aug. 1, Mansfield's "Sales Mean Jobs" crusade has been set back one day because of conflicting meeting at Central park.

The public rally which will launch the month's campaign will be held in Central park next Tuesday night, it was announced today by Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, which with the Retail Merchants association is sponsoring the campaign.

At a meeting of the publicity committee yesterday of which J. A. Herbert is chairman, plans were made to use every possible reminder that a "Sales Means Job" campaign is in progress—street banners, flags, posters, milk caps and red and blue button badges.

The campaign, which has proved successful in a number of cities, is designed to stimulate business activity and thereby create extra employment.

Dr. George Ellison of the Edison Institute, New York City, will speak at the public rally Tuesday night.

But Irish Playwright Declines Congratulatory Messages.

LONDON — (INS) — George Bernard Shaw observed but did not celebrate his 82nd birthday today.

In fact, he attempted—with some acrimony—to ignore the whole affair, and declared he did not want to be reminded of it.

The famed Irish playwright declined to accept congratulatory messages.

Sawyer Scoffs at Davey Charge He Made Loans to Newspapers

(By Associated Press)

Charles Sawyer branded today as "silly" a charge by Gov. Martin L. Davey, his foe for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, that Sawyer loaned "large sums of money belonging to policy-holders of a Cincinnati insurance company" to two newspaper chains, Scripps-Howard and Brush-Moore of Ohio.

Davey made the accusation during a third-term campaign radio address last night in Cincinnati, asserting that Sawyer "worked his way into control" of the company through a voting trust and "by taking advantage of a law client proceeded to operate the company for his political benefit."

Sawyer, advised of the speech while he attended a party rally at Chillicothe, replied:

"The accusations are so silly that it is needless for me to comment. I am too busy winning the nomination to waste my time listening to hysterical nonsense and falsehoods."

Davey assailed various Ohio metropolitan newspapers, including the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the Columbus Dispatch and the Columbus Ohio State Journal.

"These particular Davey-hating papers," the governor said, "may have reason to dislike me because I would not bend to their dictatorial will. They have not been able to run the state government.

Nail Polish Emulates Rainbow

By (Mme. QUI VIVE)

Women are giving the ho-hum-hummy to red finger-nails. They're bored with them. They make them yawn. What everybody is using nobody wants. Crimson finger-nails glitter before your eyes when the waitress at the cafeteria gives you your baked beans, when the girl at the grocery weighs the spinach, when your best friend comes to see you, when you are served your chocolate "sody." That's why everybody welcomes a change. There will be no standardized color; that has made the whole business tiresome. Every girl according to her own ideas. A new and interesting beauty game to play.

To meet this change, cosmetic chemists have gone batty on the subject. You can get nail polish in every color of the rainbow and any number of blends. What you apply depends upon the color of the frock you wear. There's sense in that idea. Why just red? It's silly.

A famous cosmetician who specializes in toiletries for the claws of pretty ladies has done considerable experimenting with colors. She has made a study of combinations of nail polish and fabric colors that are fashionable this season. Her conclusions are interesting.

Navy blue is more popular than it has been for the last ten years. If you have a practical sheer, and what's nicer for a steady-wearing frock, touch your finger-nails with thistle, bisque, wisteria or pimento. Pimento is a lively shade. Wisteria is lovely with navy

Beige is another old friend that is back again. We used to love it because it is a good old-shoe color, chums up with almost any other color, is altogether desirable. With beige you can have talons of flower-pot red or tulip. Some of the thistle shades are agreeable Depends upon the color of your hat Hats have something to say. One must consider the ensemble.

With your white evening robe, or your crisp organdy for day wear, red banana is a knock out, and onyx isn't to be sneezed at. Burgundy has an affinity for the black dress, though you can use platinum if you prefer. Nice with orchid is amethyst, which directs to familiarity with the purple tones. If you desire to be sensational you can select shrimp. It sounds noisy, but it isn't It isn't far removed from coral, which is one of the friendliest colors one can use.

Topaz polish is grand with brown; clover looks well with the wine shades that some of the grandmamas are wearing this season. Before the red frock you must pause and ponder. The best selection is a natural flesh tone.

Weather strips fitted to doors and windows will keep out the cold and make your house considerably warmer.

Don't ever be too stuck on a good plan. New evidence may reveal the fact that your plan has slight chance for success. against this contract. Dummy played the 2 and East the K. South allowed this to hold and the J was returned, followed by the 5 to South's A. The diamonds A and K were cashed and a diamond trick given up. East then played the spade A for the fourth trick, hoping to get some encouraging signal from West. When this did not occur, he switched to a heart and South took the remainder of the tricks.

When East returned the club J, after winning the first trick, West could have set the contract by overtaking the J with the Q and switching to the heart J. With no entry for his club suit when set up, it was far better to try for tricks in some other direction.

Frozen Fruit Salad Favorite

(The Home Kitchen)
By ALICE LYNN BARRY

JUST RIGHT for a broiling day is this collection of cool, crisp salads, ideal for luncheon or supper.

Frozen fruit salad is everyone's favorite, and every cook has her favorite method of making this delectable dish. Ours is made with one cup strawberries, one cup pears, one-half cup orange, one-half cup grapefruit (or three cups of any fresh or canned fruit may be used), one cup mayonnaise, one teaspoon gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, one-half cup whipping cream and two tablespoons powdered sugar. Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes, then melt it over hot water and add to mayonnaise. Cut fruit in small pieces, slicing strawberries, and add to the mayonnaise, allowing to stand for five minutes. (This prevents fruit from freezing too hard.) Whip the cream, adding the powdered sugar. Fold into fruit mixture and place in two narrow ice cube trays to freeze. When frozen hard, mixture may be turned from freezing tray by loosening round the edge with a knife, then pressing on the bottom of the tray. Do not use hot water. Cut into rectangles or cubes, and serve on lettuce or watercress and curly endive. This recipe serves from eight to 10.

Panama Salad.

Panama salad takes care nicely of that leftover chicken, veal or lamb. Ingredients include three ripe bananas, one-half cup diced, fresh or canned pineapple, one-half cup diced, cooked chicken, veal or lamb, one-half cup diced celery, one-half teaspoon salt and one-quarter cup mayonnaise. Mix the banana and pineapple thoroughly, as this will prevent banana from darkening. After this mixture has stood for a few minutes, add the cooked meat, celery, salt and mayonnaise and mix well. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves and garnish with parsley or slices of stuffed olives and nuts.

Novel Salad.

Tomato cups with sweetbreads salad is a delicious and novel dish for that luncheon that you wish to go off particularly well. Two pairs sweetbreads, one tablespoon vinegar, two teaspoons salt, one cup diced cucumber, two tablespoons lemon juice, one cup fresh-cooked green peas, one-third cup mayonnaise, one quarter cup whipped cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and six medium-sized tomatoes will serve six. Soak sweetbreads in cold water for one hour. Drain and place in quart of boiling water to which the vinegar and two teaspoons salt have been added. Simmer for 15 minutes. Drain and plunge sweetbreads into cold water to keep them firm and white. Separate the sweetbreads from the membrane and break into small pieces (after this they may be stored in refrigerator until ready for use.) Peel cucumber, cut into small dice and combine with sweetbreads. Add the lemon juice. Whip the cream and, after folding in the mayonnaise, combine the two mixtures. Peel the tomatoes by placing in boiling water for a few seconds. Cut a slice from the top and scoop out the centers. Add a few grains of salt to the inside of each tomato. Chill in automatic refrigerator and, when ready to serve, fill centers with the sweetbread salad, garnish with sprigs of watercress or parsley and serve in lettuce cups.

My Neighbor Says:

Seven drops of lemon juice added to a pint of cream before whipping it will cause it to beat up in less than half the time it would without the juice.

When making jellies or jams use a kettle large enough so that liquid will not boil over. It should hold four or five times as much liquid as is to be cooked.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

All the thrill and excitement of the melodramatic adventure into which my father's request had sent us oozed rapidly away as my mother-in-law's voice asked caustically to be given the reason for all the commotion.

Katherine had engaged to keep Bill, Hank, the two small boys and Dicky's mother safely upstairs and out of the necessary commotion below. But I knew that she had made a reservation as far as Mother Graham was concerned. For it is our sad experience that only Divine intervention can affect my mother-in-law's determination to pursue a chosen course once she makes up her mind what path she wishes to follow. And familiar as I am with her routine, I knew pretty well what she was going to tell me before she clothed her thoughts in words.

Lets Dicky Answer.

Basely I let Dicky take the brunt of answering her question.

"What commotion, Mother?" he parried with surprising banality, for he should have known how futile any evasion would be with his mother.

"Don't anser me as if you were a parrot!" she adjured him, drawing herself up to her full height, for, unlike many old women, she is not stooped with age, but has preserved the stately carriage of her earlier years. "I've had enough of brainless answers from that ape upstairs."

"You mean Katie?" her son queried with an innocent air, and I could cheerfully have strangled him for his baiting of her, even though I knew that the reason for it lay in his wish to tell her as little as possible of the real situation.

Must Tell Her Truth.

But I knew that the one way of salvaging the situation and avoiding one of my mother-in-law's tantrums was to tell her the truth and rouse her melodrama-loving soul to interest in the situation confronting us. I did not share Dicky's masculine skepticism of an old woman's discretion, for I know from experience that once entrusted fully with a secret, 20 teams of the traditional wild horses could not drag it from her.

"Of course I mean Katie," she snapped, fixing her son with a frosty eye. "Whom else should I mean? Do you know of anyone upstairs at the present time to whom I would give that epithet?"

"Mother Dear," I said placatingly. "I do hope Katie hasn't annoyed you, but the poor woman doesn't know rightly what she is doing, she is so necessarily hurried."

"I wish somebody would tell me when she ever did know whether she was standing on her head or her heels," Mother Graham retorted, but I realized with gratification that my placating words had had their effect, and that her own tone was much mollified.

"I was wakened out of a sound sleep," she said, "by the most awful banging and clattering. I could not think what on earth was happening, and I arose, put on my bathrobe and slippers and went out into the hall where I saw Katie hauling out a bookcase from Mary's room, and hitting it against the wall at every step.

Katie Impudent.

"I asked her what in the world she was doing," she went on, "and what do you think she had the unmitigated impudence to tell me?"

She looked at us as if daring us to guess, and Dicky answered her quickly.

"There's nobody in the world who could tell what Katie might say at any given moment," he said, and his mother nodded vigorously.

"But she transgressed all bounds this time," she said. "When I asked her what she was doing, and why, she tossed her head in that impudent way she has and said she 'couldn't tell me nodings,' that it was all 'secret detacatuff stoof.' And then she went on about her work as if I weren't on earth. I can tell you my fingers never itched to slap anybody's face as they did hers. But it took ten generations to make me a lady, and I do not forget my training so easily. So I simply left her, and came down here to headquarters."

"You shall know everything we know, Mother, in less than five minutes," I promised rashly. "Sit down and let me tell you all about it."

THEATER

THOSE who have seen the Walter Wanger picture "Algiers" (not yet ready for general distribution) are giving him credit as the man who had the nerve to "break" Hedy Lamarr to American movie followers. Hedy is the exotic Viennese beauty whose foreign-made picture "Ecstacy" caused a furore because she went swimming in the nude—and the scenes weren't long shots either. Her husband was so shocked that he tried to buy up all of the negatives. She makes her debut in "Algiers" with Charles Boyer. But before Wanger gave her a break M-G-M had spent something like $40,000 in make-up experiments and screen tests for the brunet beauty, and should get some credit for "pioneering" Hedy.

* * *

Good Movie Fare.

For unadulterated motion picture entertainment without any frills the movie addicts will have to go far to find anything better than a very simple little program picture, "Love Finds Andy Hardy." It's an unpretentious feature with a story as simple as your next door neighbor's cat and kittens There isn't any hero or heroine and nary a trace of a villain, but it provides something over an hour of chuckles and pleasant reminiscences. It might be your own family affairs. Mickey Rooney holds the center of the stage as the adolescent with a handful of love affairs, a very young man-about-town with a second hand car and three pretty girls eager for his attention. This is one of the Judge Hardy series of program pictures, but will be remembered after more pretentious "epics" are forgotten. It's at the Madison through Wednesday.

* * *

Guizar and His Guitar.

Tito Guizar brings his famous guitar to the screen in "Tropic Holiday" which continues at the Ohio through Wednesday. Tito is a Latin troubadour from below the Rio Grande, born and educated in Mexico City, who made his debut in "Manon" with the Chicago Opera company. Later he went to the night clubs to entertain and was a hit at Central Park casino and the Ritz-Carlton. His first screen appearance was in "Big Broadcast of 1938." He and his guitar make a highlight of "Tropic Holiday," in which Martha Raye, Bob Burns, Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland are starred.

* * *

Re-Issue Rogers Movie

The apparently never-ending popularity of the humorist, Will Rogers, brings a re-issue of one of his later pictures, "The County Chairman." Taking George Ade's political comedy of the 1900's, Rogers portrays a pleasing role as a Wyoming lawyer who nominates his young partner, Kent Taylor, for the post of county prosecutor to oppose his unscrupulous enemy, Berton Churchill. A good old-fashioned mud-slinging campaign follows with Kent winning the campaign (due, of course, to Rogers) and also the girl, played by Evelyn Venable. Stepin Fetchit lends the humor to this well-known picture. "One Wild Night" starring June Lang and Lyle Talbot is the other movie starting today at the Majestic.

* * *

Colorful Production.

A color movie depicting the great north woods is sufficient in itself to attract the audience "ohs" and "ahs", but when George Brent and Beverly Roberts team on a James Oliver Curwood story of where men are men the appeal is guaranteed. This tale, which deals with the rivalry between a girl owner of a lumber camp (Beverly Roberts) and Robert Barrat. Barrat's brother, acted by George Brent gets mixed up in the feud, but finds himself on the side of the beautiful Beverly. Everything works out very prettily with the heroine clasped in the hero's arms for the final curtain. "Mad About Music" is the tantalizing Deanna Durbin selection which also opens for a three-day run today at the Ritz.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, July 27.

A very lively and progressive day is forecast from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. There may be a state of high pressure, with the energies and spirit of initiative under fine stimuli for advancement and preferment. Superiors and those in power seem ready to support projects of a practical and constructive nature. Shun impetuosity and rash actions, and be careful with contracts and writings, leaving no loophole for loss.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very active and enterprising year. Affairs are under high pressure for progress and achievement, with recognition and support from those in power and prestige. But be wise with papers, writings and contracts, and be alert to entanglements.

A child born on this day may be energetic, practical and creative.

PROTECT HOME AGAINST FIRES, BUILDERS URGE

$500,000,000 Annual Bill for Blaze Loss in Country, Authorities Estimate.

Reports on fire losses during recent years, by careful analysis, are giving home owners added reason for making home improvements now. Each year sees a huge toll exacted by fire in both lives lost and good American dollars gone up in smoke. By way of a reminder, the yearly bill for fires amounts to about $500,000,000.

Close examination of these figures shows that 62 per cent or almost two thirds of all fire losses occur in one and two family homes. This amounts to a direct loss of over $300,000,000 yearly.

Basements Need Attention.

All the evidence points to the need of fireprof construction to curb this enormous loss of money and its accompanying loss of life. Statistics show that fireproof basements reduce the fire hazard since most fires in small homes start at this point.

By intelligent use of concrete in the basement, not only will a dangerous breeding place for fires be eliminated but valuable wasted space utilized as well. A playroom, den or workshop can be provided at comparatively little cost. A concrete floor is economical, permanent and easy to work with. Needed partitions can be built with new lightweight, fireproof concrete block. Once the basement is improved the tendency to make it a catchall for rubbish is eliminated and with it a dangerous fire hazard

Building Permits

Building permits issued at city hall since Monday, July 18, include:

Albert Poth, 64 Raleigh avenue, residence $3,400, Anto Betz, 804 Andover road, residence addition $300; Elizabeth Schrenk, 612 Harter avenue, residence $3,500; Edward Getz, 796 Yale drive, residence $6,500; Frank Bruento, 238 Gerke street, garage $125; Robert Stevens, 937 Maumee avenue, residence $3,200; H. Smith, 750 Overlook avenue, residence $3,800, Edward Schmidt, 577 Brae Burn, residence $7,000, and 581 Brae Burn, residence $7,000, John Morgan, 500 Woodhill road, residence $10,000; Frank Rice, 388 Marshall avenue, residence addition $50.

Placement Work On House Siding Requires Care

Siding is often used for the exterior of a frame house The dwelling will prove more satisfactory over the course of years if in applying the siding it is placed over sheathing In some sections where climatic conditions warrant the omission of sheathing the siding can be applied directly to well-braced framing members.

Siding should be nailed at every bearing and near the butt edge so that the nail penetrates at tip edge of under course By so doing the siding is held securely in position When shiplap or rustic siding is used it should be nailed with two nails at each bearing

REMOVES GREASE

If there are grease spots on the kitchen porch, paint cannot be made to adhere over them unless the boards are first cleaned. First give the spots a good scrubbing with sal soda and hot water Rinse thoroughly with clear water to remove any traces of sal soda which would injure paint and allow to dry completely before applying the paint

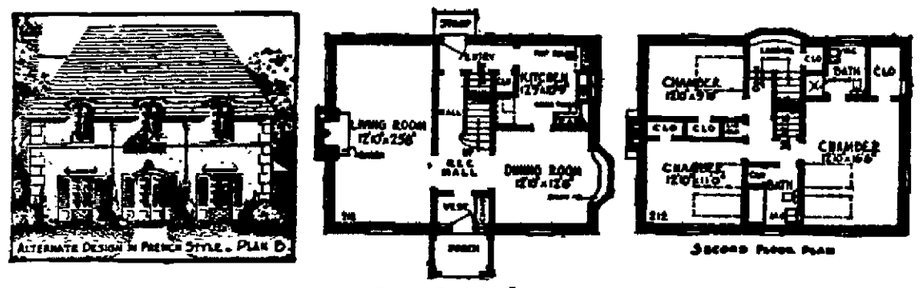
Home Designed For Comfort



FIRST FLOOR PLAN

Design 212-A, Courtesy National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

Design for stucco house with alternate exterior plan used with same floor plans.

(By Central Press)

In keeping with colonial traditions, yet substantially well fitted to modern comfortable living is the stucco house shown here.

Or, if you prefer a French air to your home, use the alternate exterior with the same floor plans.

The square design of this house allows well-proportioned rooms and very little waste space.

The first floor consists of living room, 12 feet 10 inches by 23 feet 8 inches. A fireplace and bay window at the front are pleasant features of this room. Across the central hall is the dining room, and at the back of the house the kitchen. The entrance hall or vestibule contains a coat closet.

Three spacious bedrooms, plenteous closets and two baths are on the second floor.

The house and porch together contains a total of 29,300 cubic feet. Dimensions are: size of main building, 36 by 26 feet; size over all, 39 feet 6 inches by 36 feet.

STEP-BY-STEP PLAN EMPLOYED TO MODERNIZE OLD BUILDINGS

The modernization of office buildings is often a very costly project, but likewise a very necessary one if a building is to be kept on a satisfactory income basis Many building operators today conduct their modernization campaigns over a period of years, making the improvements step by step.

By making the improvements pay for themselves in added revenue it is possible to completely restore the building without an excessive capital outlay at any one time. Further, when an entire building is subjected to renovation it means that for a period of months it will remain largely untenanted.

Funds with which to modernize office buildings may be obtained from private lending institutions operating under the Federal Housing administration's property improvement credit plan.

FROSTS BULBS

One of several ways to give a frosted effect to electric light bulbs is to dip the bulbs in a good varnish that has been thinned with turpentine While still wet, sprinkle over with white silica sand or fine pumice stone. After this has dried, dip the bulb into either a spirit or a water stain such as is used for wood—or an aniline stain in any color desired.

Bathtubs which are set in recesses are featuring doors at the side which open to reveal shallow shelves, convenient for storing soap, lotions and similar articles. Mirrors on the inside of the doors make it convenient for a person to reach from the tub and locate the desired article.

RESTFUL ROOM

A restful color harmony for a sleeping room combines green and white to good advantage. Soft green paint covers the walls and the draperies are off-white lined with soft green. The floors are painted off-white covered with a rug to match the walls. Accents of shell pink and white are used about the room and the upholstery on the chairs carries out the shell pink, white and green combination.

Specially-treated types of drapes may be washed by sponging them generously with warm—not hot—water and soap suds. They should be rinsed in warm water and dried in the sun.

Plan Available For Farmers to Finance Granary

Present indications are that wheat and corn crops will be unusually large this year in many sections where they are farmed extensively. This means that there are many farms where storage facilities for grain will have to be expanded to accomodate the harvest.

Under the amended National Housing act farmers have an opportunity for obtaining funds to finance improvements, additions, or new granaries and corn cribs.

The Property Improvement Credit plan offers a chance for farmers of good credit to borrow up to $2,500 for new buildings. The money, which is loaned by private lending institutions, may be repaid over a period up to 5 years. Repayments may be made either monthly or seasonally as the farmer receives his income, at the discretion of the lender.

STRIKING ROOM

With walls painted dusty mulberry, floors finished in ebony offer striking contrast. Either creamy peach color or pale clear blue is effective fr the upholstery while draperies of chintz with gray, old rose and ebony design on a creamy peach or pale blue background make attractive framing for the windows. Other accents of black can be used about the room.

LOUDONVILLE—A. R. Moffett of Loudonville and Wade Parks of Ashland caught a 15-pound catfish in Round lake Sunday. The fish was 28½ inches long and 17¼ inches around.

"It's Costing Them Plenty"

So will the smart people who are building this year, speak of the homes that will go up later. Those who build in '38 are getting more value for their dollar than they did in 1926 or will in 1939 or 1940.

With the demand for homes mounting it's only a matter of time before that demand will drive building costs a lot higher.

Japs, Russians In New Clash on Border, Tokyo Hears

CLAIM SOVIETS ROUTED AFTER 5-HOUR BATTLE

Japanese Say 300 Russians Seize Homes in Town, Later Forced to Retreat.

(By United Press)

TOKYO—Japanese newspaper and news agency dispatches from Manchukuo reported serious clashes between Russia and Japanese Manchukuan forces on the Siberian frontier today near the scene of last week's dangerous dispute.

The newspaper Nighi Nichi, in a special dispatch from Mutankiang, Manchukuo, asserted that 300 Russian soldiers crossed the frontier and were thrown back by Manchukuan troops after a five-hour fight.

Previously the Domei News Agency had reported that 20 Russian infantrymen and 30 cavalrymen crossed the frontier and were thrown back by frontier guards.

300 Cross River, Claim.

The Nighi Nichi dispatch said that 300 Russians crossed the Ussuri river in four gunboats, seized the town of Yaolintze on the Manchukuan side and burned houses. Neither dispatch mentioned casualties.

The scene of both of the reported clashes was in northeastern Manchukuo, in the vicinity of Hunchun.

Hunchun is near the hill which was the cause of an angry exchange between Japan and Russia last week. Russians occupied the hill. Japan, claiming the territory for Manchukuo, demanded that Russians occupying it, evacuate. Russia curtly refused and cited maps in support of its assertion to sovereignty. Japan cited other maps as proving that the territory was Manchukuan.

The report of a new clash on the frontier came at a moment when it looked as if the hill incident not only might be liquidated but might lead to a sober effort to prevent such incidents in future.

CLAIM SEIZURE NEAR

SHANGHAI—(AP)—The Japanese command announced its army at last had opened a path for a major offensive against Hankow today by occupying Kiukiang and thereby breaking the principal Chinese defense line in the Yangtze valley.

Kiukiang is 135 miles down the Yangtze river from Hankow, provision Chinese capital. The Japanese had tried more than three weeks to force entry into the city.

PLAN OVERNIGHT TRIP TO CAMP

100 Mansfield Boys To Go To 'Y' Camp Thursday Afternoon.

A jamboree for boys from five Mansfield playgrounds will be staged Thursday and Friday at the Y. M. C. A. Day camp on Park avenue west road.

Attending the outing will be about 100 boys from the Carpenter, Hedges, South park, Brinkeroff and Temple Court grounds. The group will hike to the camp, three miles west of the city, starting at 2 p. m. Thursday.

The boys will stay at the camp overnight, sleeping in pup tents. An early morning flag-raising ceremony is planned for Friday, with the return set for 3 p. m.

Accompanying the boys will be the supervisors at the five grounds, John Chatlain, Howard Richards, Paul Snyder, Robert Aungst and Grant Clark.

Up and Down THE STREET

The heat may have had something to do with the fish not biting as he claims, but Al Fendrick, city recreation director, is finding it difficult to explain his failure to make good a promise to supply friends with fish dinners on his return from a week-end fishing excursion to Indian lake. Fendrick, minus even one fish to prove his skill with the rod and reel, says the mosquitoes were the only things biting over the week-end . . . due to the heat.

There's an orchid due a certain Mansfield professional man . . . who had told his friends, when they talked about the school bond issue, that the cost of the undertaking to school district taxpayers would be 8 mills . . . then he read this column and found that he was just 10 times too high, and that the actual cost would be only 83 hundredths of a mill (a net increase of 43 hundredths, since 40 hundredths of a mill used for debt service will not be assessed after 1938). So this fair-minded chap called up everyone he remembered talking to about school bonds and corrected the error—emphasizing that the cost would be 83 hundredths of a mill, and NOT 8 mills.

Gov. Davey's campaign for renomination which already includes the use of "hot mix" signs on highways paved with this controversial material, extended to a new front —state liquor stores. Large blue and white placards bearing the inscription: "Martin L. Davey for governor" have been posted at the stores.

Two Mansfield young women owe their vacation on Lake Erie to the kindness of Mayor Charles Crum of Greenwich who yielded to their tearful pleas when they were brought before him in court. Arrested by state highway patrolmen for failing to stop at a highway intersection, the vacation-bound girls pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs each. With pleas punctuated with tears they convinced Mayor Crum that to pay their fines would force them to give up their vacation or shorten it. He gave them until Sept. 1 to pay and told them to go on and "have a good time."

FUN FOR 400

Annual Salvation Army Picnic Set for Thursday.

Thursday will be a red-letter day for the under-privileged youngsters of Mansfield, for it is the date of the annual Salvation Army picnic at North Lake park.

About 300 children and 100 adults have been given tickets for the outing, according to Adjutant David Brown. There will be a baby parade at 10:30 a. m., directed by Mrs. Brown, with prizes for the prettiest and the cutest babies and those with the darkest eyes and curliest hair. Judges will b Mrs. Carlton Fernyak, Mrs. V. H. Lodde, and Mrs. John Pierce.

At noon there will be a picnic luncheon, with Mansfield merchants helping provide food. There will be free pony rides for the youngsters, and races and games for the older children, with Lieut. R. L. Raines and playground supervisors in charge.

Those who live a distance from the park will be given bus tickets and everyone will be given tickets for the ride home. Tickets for the outing may be obtained at the Salvation Army office until Wednesday night.

EARLE'S FIGHT BREWS STORM

New Warfare Looms in Pennsy as Governor Asks Laws to Curb Court's Acts.

(By International News Service).

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The Pennsylvania legislature and the state supreme court today were apparently on the brink of open warfare.

In a momentous speech before a historic special session of the general assembly, Gov. George H. Earle asked members of his dominant Democratic party to block by legislative decree a grand jury investigation of himself and 13 Democratic associates and to prevent what he termed a "dictatorial overlordship of the judiciary." Bills to accomplish his purpose were immediately introduced.

"I have convened your honorable body in extraordinary session to repel an unprecedented judicial invasion of the executive and legislative branches of our government," he told members of the house and senate assembled in joint session to hear his address.

"In this invasion the powers vested in the legislative branch have been usurped," added the governor, "constitutional guarantees of the independence of executive and legislative branches have been violated and a dictatorial overlordship of the judiciary has been asserted."

The governor asked that the Dauphin county grand jury investigation scheduled to open Aug. 8 to consider charges of graft and corruption levelled against himself and 13 other Democratic state and party officials be blocked and a legislative investigation be held in its stead.

FREEDOM ENDS, BACK AT O. S. R.

Honor Camp Fugitive Caught In Springfield, Returned Here.

A Mansfield reformatory inmate who fled from the Osborne honor camp near Sandusky on July 3 was back behind the walls of the institution today following his return from Springfield by reformatory guards.

He is Harry Reeder, 21, received at the institution from Clark county June 29, 1937, on a burglary charge. He is under sentence from one to 15 years.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said Reeder was captured by Clark county authorities when he made a visit to his home. He added that the usual two years will be added to Reeder's sentence as penalty for his escape.

NEW YORK—(INS)—T. J. White, chairman of the board of American Newspapers, Inc., announced that Joseph V. Connolly, president of King Features syndicate and International News Service, is today appointed general manager of Hearst newspapers.

Connolly, who is 43, will continue also to operate International News Service, King Features syndicate, Central Press Association and International News Photos.

CORRIGAN SEES LONDON SIGHTS BUT WORRIES ABOUT TRIP HOME

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Douglas Corrigan, whose penchant for piquant observations equals his proficiency at the controls of an airplane, enjoyed the sights of London today, but couldn't keep his thoughts from wandering back home to the United States.

"All I'm wondering," he remarked, "is whether they will put me in the bughouse when I get back."

The youthful pilot, who flew, as he put it, by "mistake" from the United States to Ireland in a $900 plane, arrived here yesterday after a flight—as a passenger—from Ireland.

Last night he was the guest of United Sates Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

Corrigan expressed keen disappointment that of all the lucrative offers he has received from the United Sates none has come from airplane manufacturing or operating companies seeking his services.

"Crazy offers and fantastic prices have been thrown at me by night clubs," he said. "One offered me $5,000 weekly and another a little less, but I turned them both down.

"I am turning everything down, both theatrical and movies. My future is with airplanes. I have been a mechanic for 12 years both as a learner, mechanic and aviator and I think I ought to stick with what I know in the future.

"What do I know about night clubs? I don't want to be a flop.

"Why, even a circus offered me a job at a thousand a week I suppose they wanted to put me among the freaks."

HUNT MAN, GIRL

Police Link Pair to Stolen Car, Broadcast Warning.

Police throughout Ohio today were asked to search for an automobile stolen in Mansfield yesterday and hold for Richland county authorities the driver and a 15-year-old girl, believed to be his companion.

Mansfield police yesterday broadcast a description of the car and its occupants after F. J. Smeltzer, 331 West Fourth street reported that his car was missing from a garage on West Dickson avenue.

He told police that a young man who had been sleeping in the garage was also missing. A 15-year-old girl wanted by the probate as a delinquent also could not be found, police said, asserting they believed she had accompanied the man in the car.

GIVES COMPANY MONTH TO GET NEW LEGAL AID

Lawyer's Ouster for 'Conduct' at Hearing Upheld by Board Following Inquiry.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The labor relations board gave the Weirton Steel company a month to find a new counsel to replace Clyde A. Armstrong, barred by the board from defending Weirton against charges of unfair labor practices.

Armstrong had been uosted from the case for "contemptuous conduct" before Trial Examiner Edward G. Smith at Steubenville, O., July 11.

The board upheld Smith's action yesterday, contending that Armstrong's behavior in a dispute over testimony of a steel company witness reflected "a calculated attempt to wrest control of the hearing from the board's designated agent."

Armstrong was expected to make a court appeal from the board's order.

Recesses Till Aug. 24.

The board said it would not resume taking testimony in the Weirton case until Aug. 24 "to enable respondent (Weirton) to retain other counsel or otherwise prepare to resume the presentation of its defense." Any inconvenience to the steel company, it said, could be attributed to Armstrong and not to the board.

It was the first time since the board began operations in 1935 that it has taken disciplinary action against a defense attorney.

Summarizing the versions of the Steubenville dispute, which was highlighted by the hanging of Examiner Smith in effigy during a community demonstration, the board said it found that "Armstrong was guilty of contemptuous conduct to an aggravated degree."

It also noted that Armstrong refused to apologize to Examiner Smith and added:

"There is no reason to believe that were Armstrong permitted to resume participation in the hearing he would refrain from repetitions of the acts which we find intolerable . . .

"Armstrong's action since July 7 convinces us that the hearing cannot proceed if he is present, and that the ruling must stand without modification."

The board referred to the protest demonstration in Steubenville, on July 13 in protest against Armstrong's exclusion.

Ickes Says Roosevelt Would Win in 3rd Term Campaign.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Capital politicians wondered today whether Secretary Ickes was hinting at a third term race for President Roosevelt when he said:

"If the reactionaries in the Democratic party want a real test of President Roosevelt's strength with the people, I suggest that they continue to work for a situation that will result in the people being given an opportunity to vote directly on the proposition of whether or not they are for President Roosevelt and his policies.

"There can hardly be any doubt what the answer of the people would be.'

BOY, GIRL JAILED

Canton Couple Held In Murder Of New Mexico Cattle Buyer.

ELDORADO, Kas.—(AP)—Police arrested a boy and girl hitchhiker, who said they were from Canton, O., here yesterday in connection with the slaying of Francis Welker, Moriarty, N. M., cattle buyer.

Chief Charley Parton reported the girl who gave her name as Mrs. Pauline Allinger, 20, said the boy, who was booked as Robert Thompson, alias Brown, 18, shot Welker after he made advances to her.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Army should change laws that make men snitch on officers who take drink

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Walter S. Giffin, a lieutenant colonel in the army, has been on trial before a military court on a charge of drunkenness and unbecoming conduct. The unbecoming conduct suggested by the testimony does not constitute moral turpitude. At worse he was guilty of the rather foolish behavior of a man with a skinful. The penalty could be dismissal.

Regardless of the merits of this case, the army should make it the occasion for revising its code in the direction of honesty and decency by abolishing the regulation which makes an officer a prey to any snitch who considers it his duty to run and tattle when he sees an officer a little too deep in his drams. I have known many good officers and cannot recall that there was a single teetotaler among them.

* * *

In fact, I cannot recall offhand any officer of my acquaintance who did not get a little bit high now and again on his own time, and they include all ranks from major general down to second lieutenant.

Moreover, if this regulation had been similarly enforced against every officer who overdrank himself during the World war, the good of the service would have been served by the total demoralization of the service and the loss of the victory.

* * *

If an officer is a drunkard, that is quite another matter and the facts of the case are better determined by a medical board than by a court. But the mere fact of his being drunk once or on several isolated occasions in the life of a robust man to whom fighting is an occupation should not be made the occasion for a solemn trial. The penalty, barring grievous misconduct dangerous to others, should be no worse than a hangover.

I am discussing, of course, drunkenness on the officer's own time, for it must be agreed that it is not in the best interests of morale and discipline that commissioned officer fall on his face before his troops while on duty in uniform.

* * *

Everybody in the army knows that many—I was going to say most—officers get drunk occasionally. They rely on their fellow officers and the wives of the officer set to keep still about it, and therein you have dishonesty and a violation of the code of honor, because, strictly speaking, every officer who sees another one even slightly excited from liquor is supposed to tattle, and every patriotic woman of the set is theoretically bound to squeal for the good of the service. The result is a great compromise with honor and duty and a great hypocrisy.

Naturally, a commanding officer, like any other executive, should police the conduct of his subordinates and should have power to inflict some sort of glorified K. P. on an officer who gets drunk too conspicuously or too often. But this could be done without courts and charges sufficient to break a man's career and deprive the army of the worth that is in him after the government has carried him through West Point and trained him up to the rank which he occupies at the time.

* * *

The fact that not one case of known drunkenness out of a hundred ever results in charges and trial—a fact which every army officer will acknowledge—proves that the present system places more value on spite and bad luck than on justice and honor.

And when some desperate wretch comes before a court in deep humiliation to try to save his career or his pension with half-truths, white lies and attacks on the credibility of witnesses who may be veracious enough but too malicious and petty for the fellowship of officers the probability is that the men across the table who will have to decide his fate are reminding themselves of many a night when they, too, might have been laid by the heels by a snitch.

* * *

Whatever their private sentiments, they must then pay strict respect to the hypocritical law of the army and dare not give the accused the benefit of that historic definition offered before Chancellor Nicholson, of Delaware, in 1875, that a man, is not drunk until he throws himself to the ground and hangs on.

Colonel Giffen is a veteran officer who would be eligible for retirement on pension next March, and his dismissal now without his pension for conduct which is an every day occurrence in the army would be a cheap evasion of an obligation which is about to mature.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

(Pete Smith, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer short subject commentator, pinch-hits today for Robbin Coons, our Hollywood columnist, who is on vacation.)

By PETE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD—Being a commentator has its compensations.

At least, I know I've learned a lot of things.

But everybody in Hollywood talks so much, about themselves, that I've never had an opportunity to tell them.

So here goes Peter Gridley Smith, professor of strange facts, giving out with bits of wisdom gleamed during his years in the faculty at old Short Subject college.

I had an operation last month that puts me in the same class as the famous Jonker's Diamond. When they were carving me, I had a doctor and trained nurse in attendance. The Jonker rated the same service when it was cut into smaller pieces.

* * *

Robert Montgomery is Hollywood's skeet shooter, but after making "Follow the Arrow," I learned from Howard Hill that I could beat Montgomery to the draw if I used a bow and arrow while he had a regulation skeet gun. The gag being that we place our respective weapons on a table and make a five-yard run for them.

I'd rather, if it had to be, receive a wound from a bullet than an arrow, for the latter penetrates the flesh almost twice as deeply.

Speaking of cuts—and operations, I insisted upon taking gas, but I wouldn't have done so in the days of the ancient Egyptians. They simplified the matter by hitting the victim over the head with a mallet. The bigger the head, the bigger the mallet. And I wear a big hat! This must be a face because I used it in the "Anaesthesia" short!

Only one girl in 500 has a perfect figure. I personally interviewed that many beauties until I discovered Dorothy Belle Dugan as the perfect-figured girl for the lead in "Modeling For Money." Really, I wouldn't have minded if one girl in a million had a perfect figure. Think of all those interviews!

* * *

In ancient days the barber was also a surgeon. He always had a red pole in front of his shop. After washing his bandages he would wind them around the red pole to dry. This is how the present barber pole originated, as shown in "Anaesthesia."

Ladies! If your husband wants chicken every night and the family budget won't allow such a wish, just pour boiling water over some tuna fish. You can thank Prudence Penny for that one.

Don't let any of your friendly enemies convince you that a boxing match is safe because sixteen-ounce gloves are being used. Max Baer, who is starred in "Fisticuffs," claims that the blow is much heavier than with a six- or eight-ounce mitt. Boxers wear them during training to protect their hands—and not the other fellow's feelings.

I've learned to have much more respect for the lowly peanut. To the average person, it's just something to eat in a cocktail bar, so the next drink will taste better. But Doctor Carver, whose work served as the basis for a short, made 145 products from a single peanut!

STAKE RACES TOP FAIR SPEED PROGRAM OPENING WEDNESDAY

PACERS and trotters—nearly 200 of them—were poised for the take-off today as they completed tapering off for the first events of the three-day harness racing card at the Richland county fairground tomorrow.

The trumpeter, signaling that post time is near, will send out his first plast at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, calling a record number of colts from the Eastern Ohio Horsemen's association to the Interstate Loan company's two-year-old trot stake.

Next will be the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company's pace stake for 3-year-olds. Third event on the opening day's card will be The Mansfield News-Journal's 2:25 trot; and for the finale is the Office Cafe's 2:20 pace.

In the stake races purses of $200 and added are offered. These are expected to total from $450 to $500 each to be split among the winners. In the final two events purses total $250.

The field represents one of the most formidable that ever has been quartered at the Mansfield race track. It is remindful of the days when Mansfield had a prominent place in the harness racing of the Ohio Short Ship circuit.

Many of the horses entered are from the Short Ship stables and even more important is the fact that the county fair meeting has attracted more than a score of horses moved here direct from the Grand circuit meeting at North Randall.

Horsemen say that the fair board's bid for the earliest fair in Ohio this year is largely accountable for the unusual race program offered. It is of the type excelled nowhere in county fair circles and matching the caliber offered by state fairs. The horses are entered here because the fair marks the start-off of other fair racing and later Short Ship meetings.

The stake races are the feature attractions on the program for the first two days. Grand circuit and Short Ship trotters and pacers are entered in both events. Two stake races are on the program each day.

With horse barns filled, the first consignment of entries arriving late was sent to Ashland yesterday to be quartered at the Ashland county fairground. The horses will be returned to Mansfield on their racing days and stabled in a tented paddock.

Nocturnal Baseball Saves Ohio League

Night Plants Hike Attendance Materially at Parks In Fremont, Findlay and Fostoria.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

NIGHT BASEBALL has saved the professional game from what appeared certain death in the Ohio league territory this year.

Without the bulbs, the Class D circuit in which Mansfield was represented by the champion last year could not exist, according to a survey conducted by this writer.

Fremond was the first city to gamble with night baseball, and Fostoria and Findlay followed immediately after the nocturnal game was proved successful at Anderson field. Tiffin is expected to fall in line with the erection of a night plant before next season.

Games under the incandescents have increased attendance immeasurably, and all of the clubs with night plants will triple their patronage of last season, it now appears certain.

Before N. B., (night baseball) Fremont, with a championship team, played to an average attendance of much less than 200. Night baseball hiked the average to well over 500.

Fremont's attendance for the first 15 night games of the season was estimated at 8,250, which, we believe, is not far from the entire total played to all last season.

Night games have reduced the Sunday afternoon attendance to some extent, but not enough to cause the operators of the Fremont club any great amount of worry.

A similar increase in attendance has been shown at Fostoria, the smallest city in the circuit. With a first division club in the first half of the season, Fostoria averaged about 100 for twilight games and 400 for Sunday double-headers.

The first eight night games at Fostoria drew 4,000 spectators as compared to 6,000 for the entire 1937 season.

Poody Switzer, sports editor of the Fostoria Review, informs us that on one Sunday the Red Birds played to 250 in a afternoon game and packed the stands with 1,000 in the nocturnal exhibition. Fostoria has averaged between 400 and 500 for the night games.

* * * * *

Findlay's increase in attendance has been as marked as it has been at Fostoria and Fremont, we understand.

* * * * *

Night Ball Success Should Encourage Mansfield.

THE success of night baseball in these Ohio State league cities should encourage the Mansfield citizens who are dabbling with the idea of obtaining a franchise for the city in the circuit next year.

The cost of light installation is no longer prohibitive, and if Mansfield could show the same increase in attendance as the other cities, a club here would attract well in excess of 30,000 patrons. A club could be operated in this city at a profit if these figures are reliable.

Mansfield drew 15,000 persons in the Ohio league last year. This is not much of a figure for a city the size of Mansfield, which was represented by a first place club from start to finish, but it must be remembered that the club encountered many difficulties in the revival of the game here.

There is no question in our mind that Mansfield could operate with a minimum deficit, if not at a slight profit, with night baseball next year.

Mansfield wants to return to organized baseball, we judge from what we hear from fans, and as the missionary work has been done by Billy Evans, we can't see why a club cannot be operated on a profitable basis with night baseball.

Mansfield is much larger than the other cities in the loop, and if they can continue in the league without financial worries, then this city could, too, we believe.

Knockout Seen In Title Bout Tonight.

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS)—Should the middleweight title fight tonight between Champion Freddie Steele of Tacoma and Al Hostak of Seattle end with the stout arm of Referee Jack Dempsey, the mighty Manassa Mauler, tolling the fateful count of ten, it will not surprise many of the fans who have watched Steele and Hostak in training. There were strong indications that one of the principals in tonight's fistic gigantic will take the count. Both fighters are in top-notch condition.

Cabmen Remain In Front In News-Journal Golf League

THE DeLuxe Cabs continue to ride high, wide and handsome in The News-Journal Class A golf league.

Dick Van Dyne's men of the links retained first place in the city's premier golf league at Possum Run yesterday when they halted the rampaging Yuncker Sports, 3 to 2.

Printers Keep Pace.

The Richland Printers kept pace with the Cabbies by outpointing the Matthes Clothiers, 3 to 2, to remain three points behind the leaders, and the Goldsmith Clothiers enhanced their chances to overtake the leaders on some future date by climbing within one point of second place with a 4 to 1 triumph over the Big Three Beers.

Lawrence Deley paced the DeLuxe club with a 37, but he and Vin Malaska, No. 1 man, with a 38, were defeated. Bob Dillon and Chuck Snyder scored the Cabs' match points with respective scores of 38 and 40.

A 35 by Al Kushn was a pretty good reason for Malaska bowing in his match, the winner's score taking medal honors for the day.

Carl Kushin's 36 and V. H. Oberlander's 38 enabled the Matthes team to stave off a worse defeat at the hands of the Printers, but he later had to go three extra holes before Oscar Frantz admitted defeat.

Harry Schlegel poled out a 39 and Ted Etzel came through with a 41 to annex the Printers' match points.

Win For Clothiers.

Pete Zeides hung up a 38, Pilot a 40 and Frank Vild a 41 as the Goldsmith club scored the most decisive victory of the day. Paul Jesson rolled out a 41 and went one extra hole to defeat Mihalic and save the Beers form a shutout.

Kleshinski Shoots Ace at Westbrook

The third hole-in-one of the season at Westbrook country club was registered over the week-end by Sylvester Kleshinski, who is a member of Pro Jock Collins' staff.

Kleshinski rapped out his ace on the 152-yard No. 15 with a six iron. The ball landed a few feet in front of the hole and bounced in.

It was on this hole where Bart Haley obtained his ace several weeks ago. The other hole-in-one at Westbrook was scored by E. R. Hartman on No. 18.

Merchants Return To Action Sunday

Strengthened by the addition of several new players, the Mansfield Merchants will meet Galion in a single game at League park at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. The Merchants recently reorganized and named Pete Metz as manager.

STICKLER STARS AS PROSPECT TRIMS JOHNS PARK

Pitches Superb Relief Ball, Hits Two Homers and Double to Lead Teammates to Undisputed Lead.

PROSPECT PARK again proved the nemesis of the Johns park representatives in the City Class A softball league yesterday when it defeated Manager John Flockenzier's flock, 11 to 9, at Johns park.

The defeat was only the second of the season for the Johnnies, whose other setback was also administered by the Prospecters.

The uphill victory enabled the Prospect park entry to climb into undisputed possession of first place in the second half race. The Prospecters are undefeated in this half.

Stop Fullager.

The feature of the thrill-packed contest was the pitching and batting of big Al Stickler, who received credit for the triumph which ended Jim Fullager's six-game winning streak in the league. It was Fulager's first defeat in the circuit this year.

With the score 7 to 6 against Prospect in the fourth, Stickler was rushed to the mound by Manager John Valentine to replace the faltering Ted Frisbee.

Johns Park scored only two runs off the lanky righthander. One of the runs came in the fourth before he could retire the side and the other in the fifth. He held the first half champions scoreless in the last four rounds.

In addition to pitching brilliantly, Stickler, former Mansfield high basketball star, collected two home runs, a double and a single in five trips to the plate.

Frisbee also figured prominently in the scoring of the Prospect team with a pair of circuit blows.

Harry Ross led the losers, whose defeat dropped them into a tie for second place with North Park, with three singles.

Prospect took a 3 to 0 lead in the first inning when Nick Weber singled and Stickler and Frisbee hit successive home runs. A walk, a single and a costly error gave the visitors three more runs in the third. Frisbee's second home run with Weber and Stickler on the sacks gave Valentine's men three more tallies in the fifth to regain the lead 9 to 8.

Hits Second Homer.

Stickler's double and an error enabled Prospect to add another point in the seventh. Prospect's final run came in the ninth when Stickler poled out his second Ruthian drive.

Johns Park put across its first run in the second on Harry Ross' single and an error. Four singles and a walk gave the hosts four marks in the third. Two singles, an error and a walk enabled the Johnnies to dent the plate three times to go ahead 8 to 6 in the fourth.

After scoring one run on a single and double in the fifth, Stickler set the Johnnies down regularly thereafter.

Gettles Wins Duel With Musille, 3 to 1.

THE Richland county fish and game representatives of North park continued their march up the City Class A softball league ladder yesterday when they defeated Liberty park, 3 to 1, at North park, to climb into a tie for second place with Johns park in the second half.

All of the scoring in the tight ball game was done in the first three innings as Gettles of the Sportsmen and D. Musille of Liberty waged one of the most exciting pitching duels of the season.

Hurls Airtight Ball.

Gettles scattered seven hits and issued six walks and held the Liberties scoreless after the first inning. He was in hot water on several occasions, but pulled himself out of the tight spots with nifty pitching, aided by spectacular fielding by his teammates.

Musille limited the winners to six hits, and only three of them figures in the scoring. Musille struck out two and walked two.

Fogle obtained two of the Sportsmen's hits, while Pitcher Musille and Fisher divided four of the seven blows yielded by Gettles.

Liberty park scored its only run in the first when D. Musille opened the game with a single, advanced on Forman's fielder's choice, moved to third on Henrich's error and scored on Schaeffer's fly to center field.

The Sportsmen took a lead that was never lost in the last half of the first when they tallied twice. Balbaugh double and Fogle walked, and both scored on J. Musille's error after Seymour's fly to center advanced them a base.

Scores Last Run.

The other North park run came in the third when Gettles, first man up singled, Balbaugh walked and Fogle singled.

Allen's Hopes for New Winning Record Blasted at Fenway Park

CLEVELAND—(UP—The hopes fiery Johnny Allen had for a new consecutive game record were strewn about Fenway park at Boston today, but the Cleveland Indians nevertheless returned home for a 13-game stand with their pennant hopes burning brightly.

Allen had a 12-game winning streak snapped yesterday when the Red Sox beat him 4 to 0 in the first game of a double-header. Cleveland came back in the night-cap to grab the decision 3 to 0 and thereby return home only one full game out of first place.

The even break yesterday enabled Cleveland to finish its third invasion of the east with a .500 mark, its best of the campaign. The Tribe won five games and lost a like number.

Allen, making his first start in two weeks, pitched fine ball but his effort was not good enough to match the brilliant three-hit performance of Rookie Emerson Dickman.

Allen was nicked for five hits in the seven rounds he worked. Boston scored once in the second inning, added two more in the fifth and their final counter in the sixth on Jimmy Foxx's 27th home run of the season.

The only hits Dickman allowed were doubles by Earl Averill and Hal Trosky, and a single by Sammy Hale.

It was the second game however, that furnished Cleveland fans with a bright pennant outlook. In it the veteran Mel Harder hung up his fourth straight victory as he set the Red Sox down with five hits.

For the past month Harder has been the most reliable hurler on the Tribe's staff. Harder's curve ball, as deceptive a pitch as possessed by any moundsman in the league, was at its tantalyzing best.

The Rookie Jim Bagby was on the mound for Boston and permitted only six hits. The Tribe took the lead in the fourth inning on Ken Keltner's 17th home run of the year; added another in the sixth on Jeff Heath's triple and Earl Averill's long fly, and their final counter in the ninth on Heath's infield single and Keltner's double.

The Indians open their home stand against Philadelphia and Manager Oscar Vitt was to give his "problem child," Bob Feller, another chance to make good. Al Thomas was slated to work for the Athletics.

Dad Believes Homesickness Reason For Feller's Slump

CLEVELAND—(AP)—If a touch of homesickness helped to throw Bob Feller off his pitching stride, as the young hurler's dad believes, everything should be hunky-dory today.

For awaiting Mr. and Mrs. William Feller and Bob's 9-year-old "kid sister" were reserved seats for the opening game of the Philadelphia - Cleveland series — and the lad who sky-rocketed to fame out of Van Meter, Ia., was scheduled to take the mound for the Indians.

The Tribe returned to Cleveland from Boston after dividing a double-header yesterday, dropping the first game 4-0 and snaring the second 3-0.

Only a few days ago Master Robert told newsmen he had lost his fast ball.

"Dad" Feller, who arrived from Iowa with the family late yesterday, took his stalwart son's statement "with a grain of salt."

"I'm not worried about Robert," he remarked calmly. "He hasn't lost his fast ball. I think he may be just a little bit homesick. We'll all be out there to see him against the Athletics."

The father said Bob recently wrote that he "was very anxious to see us." The Fellers decided to spend two weeks with the 19-year-old strikeout artist, who has won 10 and lost five games to date this season.

"I think the fans expect too much of him," the elder Feller said. "If another pitcher lost a couple of games, it wouldn't receive much notice."

Feller's teammates voiced similar opinions. "He's not turning his fast ball loose the way he used to," one said. "He has run into one of those bad streaks that all pitchers strike, and he's worrying about it."

Lutherans Add Another Win

Defeat Park Baptists, 17-16, in Wild Game.

First Lutheran continued its winning ways in the Y. M. C. A. Church softball league yesterday by defeating Park Avenue Baptists, 17 to 16, in a wild scoring game at Prospect park.

Wineland and Sabdel of the Lutherans, and Brady and Thierlin of the Baptists hit home runs.

In the other games, St. John's won over St. Mark's, 10 to 9, and South Main defeated United Brethren, 12 to 9, at Liberty park. The box scores of these two games could not be published because of their illegibility.

FIVE FIRMS BID ON WOODLAND WATER TOWER

City Board Studies Proposals for 150,000 Gallon Tank and 2 Booster Pumps.

The city board of control today was studying the proposals of five firms on bids submitted on materials to be used in the construction of the Woodland water tower.

The bids were opened yesterday afternoon by the board of control which consists of Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert.

Styert explained today that the contracts probably would not be awarded for a few days until city engineers had an opportunity to evaluate the efficiency of the pumps and electric motors to be installed in connection with the erection of the tower.

Specifications call for the construction of a 150,000 gallon elevated tank at the Woodland reservoir and the installation of two booster pumps with a 275 gallon per minute capacity complete with valves and fittings.

2 Bids on Tank.

Only two bids were submitted on the construction of the elevated tank, both by out-of-town firms. They were the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works, Chicago, whose bid of $14,790 was approximately $1,000 lower than the Pittsburgh-Des Moines company, Pittsburgh, whose price was $15,875. On an alternate bid with a different type column construction the Chicago firm submitted a bid of $15,530 while the Pittsburgh company bid $16,150.

Of the three proposals entered for the installation of the booster pumps and fittings, the Downing and Hetrick company, Columbus, with a bid of $3,537 was $238 lower than its closest competitor, the Purdy Construction company, Mansfield, who bid $3,737. The Drovo corporation of Cleveland submitted a bid of $3,844.

18 NEW CASES OF T. B. FOUND

More Than Half Patients at Recheck Clinic Ill With Disease, Report Says.

Eighteen new cases of tuberculosis have been discovered in Richland county, a report of the quarterly recheck chest clinic which was held last Friday under the direction of Dr. T. L. Bliss of Akron showed today.

Of the 31 patients examined, 18 or 65 per cent showed a positive test while 13 proved negative. Of the total number of new cases, eight were in Mansfield, three were from Shelby and three were from other parts of the county.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner said that the 18 new cases brings to 75 the total number of cases found in the county since Jan. 1. Of the 300 suspects that have been examined by the clinic, 225 have shown negative tests, however.

Two of the new patients were recommended to the county commissioners to be sent to the sanitarium at Mt. Vernon while three others were recommended for surgical treatment, Dr. Rehder said.

RENEW 'FEUD'

Lawyers, Doctors to Meet in Golf Tourney Thursday.

Richland county lawyers and physicians will renew their golf feud in their annual golf tourney Thursday at Westbrook Country club.

Approximately 60 professional men will attend the luncheon at the clubhouse and participate in the tournament, Atty. Francis R. O'Brien, who is in charge of registrations, said today.

Members of the doctors' committee in charge of arrangements are Drs. Frank Maxwell, O. H. Schettler and Dwight A. Weir. Attys. O'Brien, Marion D. Ward and H. H. Schettler are on the lawyers' committee.

ROTARIANS MEET

GALION—At the regular meeting of the Galion Rotary club Monday night, considerable time was spent in discussing the article in the July Rotarian on "Whether or Not the Profit System Should Be Abolished."

A letter was read by H. T. Jackson from the district governor, Father Hoot of Orrville, asking the Galion club to sponsor a club at Mt. Gilead. The club discussed a survey which had been made last year for this purpose, and decided it would not be feasible.

BUCYRUS—An all day meeting at the Elberson hotel, Wednesday, will attract county agriculture agents from 12 counties in this district. The wheat situation in Ohio will be the chief topic for discussion, which will be led by members of the rural economics department of Ohio State university and a representative of the state soil conservation committee.

$100,000 BUSINESS OFFERED ANYONE PAYING OFF TAX BILL

(By International News Service)

EVANSVILLE — To be given away: one $100,000 business — with no takers!

Oddly enough, that's the situation that faces Harry Lang, owner of a lubricating oil processing plant and a string of four filling stations here. Lang, tired of seeing approximately 25 per cent of his gross volume going to local, state and federal tax collectors, offered sometime ago to give the business to anyone who will pay him an amount equal to the annual taxes for a period of five years.

But to date there have been no acceptances of the offer, probably — Lang thinks — because of the list of taxes to which his business is subject. Totaling $30,000 annually, they include: state and federal gasoline taxes, social security imposts, the personal property tax, the state gross income tax, the federal net income tax, the chain store tax, the corporation tax, the capital stock tax, the real property tax, the electricity tax, the telephone tax and a half-dozen others that Lang couldn't recall off hand.

"Of course, the one these taxes really hit is the consumer," he said. "Whether the average man knows it or not, he pays out just about 25 per cent of his income in taxes—most of it hidden in the price of things he buys. This is obvious, for manufacturers like myself must pass them on, and the consumer pays them in the end.

"Together," he complained, "the taxes amount to five times as much as I get myself. To make matters worse, it takes me an average of two hours daily to fill out all the forms.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Bids will be received by the Board of Education of the Monroe Township Rural School District, Richland County, Ohio, at the Present School Building in Lucas, Ohio, until 12:00 o'clock noon, Ohio State Time, Tuesday, August 23rd, 1938, and will be publicly opened and read aloud, at a meeting of the Board held the same day at the Present School Building at One o'clock P. M. for furnishing all materials, and performing all labor necessary to construct, erect and equip an Addition to Present School Building, on their premises at Lucas, Richland County, Ohio, according to Plans and Specifications prepared by the Office of Charles J. Marr, Registered Architect, 151½ North Broadway, New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Plans, Specifications, and Contract Documents are on file at the Office of Mr. E. C. Culler, Clerk of the Board above mentioned at Lucas, Ohio, and at the Office of the Architect. The Drawings, Specifications, Instructions to Bidders, Proposal Forms, etc., are obtainable from the Office of the Architect at New Philadelphia, Ohio. All proposals shall be made in conformity with the General Code of Ohio on blank forms furnished by the Architect and shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope and addressed to the Board of Education of the Monroe Township Rural School District, endorsed "Proposals for General Construction, or other Specific branch of work) for the Monroe Township Rural School District," on the outside of the envelope.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of 5% or an approved Surety Company's Bond made unconditionally payable to the Clerk-Treasurer of the Board of Education, as a guaranty of it being properly secured by an approved surety bond to 100% of the contract sum. The amount of such guaranty shall be retained by the Board of Education and for liquidated damages sustained by reason of his failure to do so.

Attention is called to the special construction Regulations which are included in the Specifications, and to the special requirements for preferment of labor, wage rates, and hours of employment.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date of opening bids.

Particular attention is called to the Statutory requirements of the State of Ohio relative to licensing of Corporations organized under the Laws of any other State.

Bidders desiring plans and specifications will be required to deposit $5.00 with the Architect, which amount less $2.50 for printing and postage, will be refunded upon their return, provided that the contractor taking out the Plans and Specifications submits a bid pursuant to this notice, and Plans and Specifications returned within 30 days after opening of bids. Bids will be taken and contracts awarded separately for the following branches of work:

1—General Construction Contract.
2—Plumbing Contract.
3—Electric Wiring & Fixtures Contract.
4—Heating & Ventilating Contract.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

By order of the Board of Education of the Monroe Township Rural School District, Richland County, Ohio.

E. C. CULLER,
Clerk, Board of Education of the Monroe Township Rural School District, Richland County, Ohio.

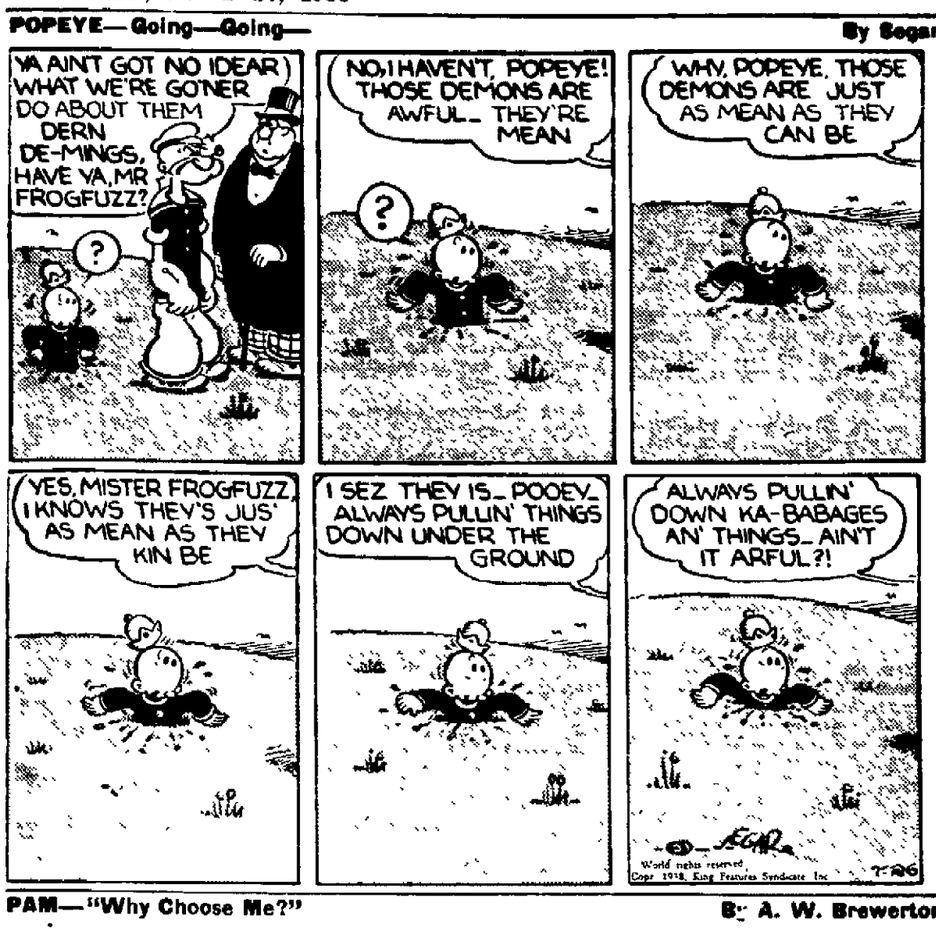
POPEYE—Going—Going— By Segar



YA AIN'T GOT NO IDEAR WHAT WE'RE GONER DO ABOUT THEM DERN DE-MINGS, HAVE YA, MR FROGFUZZ?
NO, I HAVEN'T, POPEYE! THOSE DEMONS ARE AWFUL— THEY'RE MEAN
WHY, POPEYE, THOSE DEMONS ARE JUST AS MEAN AS THEY CAN BE YES, MISTER FROGFUZZ, I KNOWS THEY'S JUS' AS MEAN AS THEY KIN BE
I SEZ THEY IS— POOEY— ALWAYS PULLIN' THINGS DOWN UNDER THE GROUND
ALWAYS PULLIN' DOWN KA-BABAGES AN' THINGS— AIN'T IT ARFUL?!

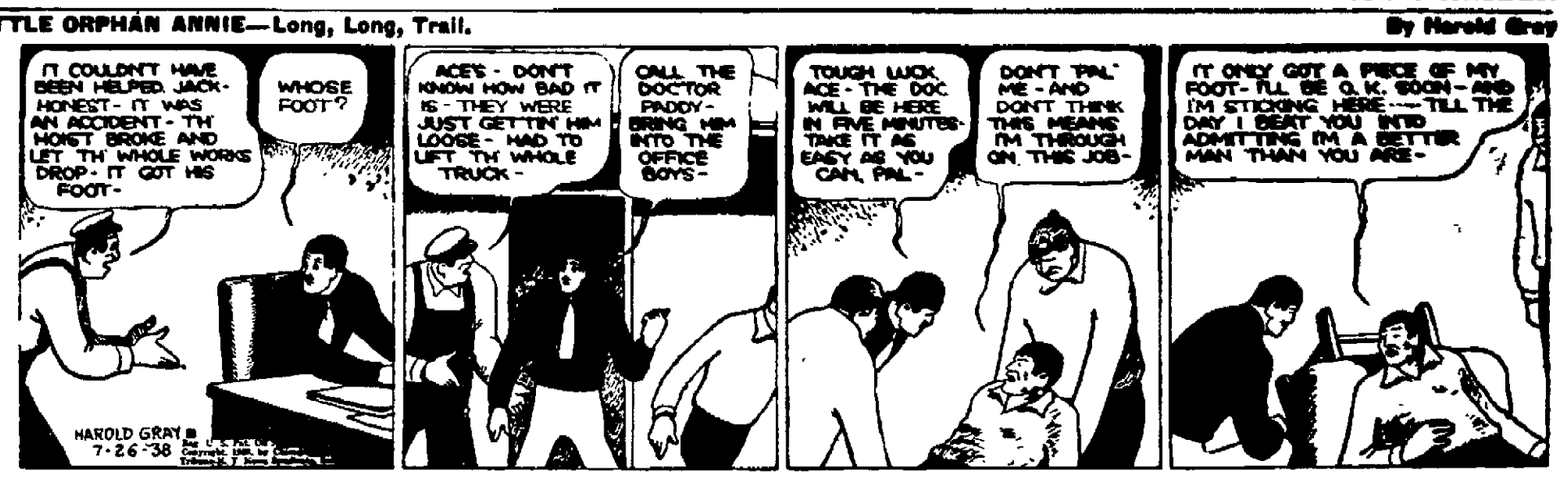
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Long, Long, Trail. By Harold Gray



IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN HELPED, JACK- HONEST- IT WAS AN ACCIDENT- TH' HOIST BROKE AND LET TH' WHOLE WORKS DROP- IT GOT HIS FOOT-
WHOSE FOOT?
ACE'S- DON'T KNOW HOW BAD IT IS- THEY WERE JUST GETTIN' HIM LOOSE- HAD TO LIFT TH' WHOLE TRUCK-
CALL THE DOCTOR FADDY- BRING HIM INTO THE OFFICE BOYS-
TOUGH LUCK, ACE- THE DOC WILL BE HERE IN FIVE MINUTES- TAKE IT AS EASY AS YOU CAN, PAL-
DON'T "PAL" ME- AND DON'T THINK THIS MEANS I'M THROUGH ON THIS JOB-
IT ONLY GOT A PIECE OF MY FOOT- I'LL BE O. K. SOON- AND I'M STICKING HERE— TILL THE DAY I BEAT YOU INTO ADMITTING I'M A BETTER MAN THAN YOU ARE-

THE NEBBS— Not a Chance. By Sol Hoopa

LOOK WHAT STEVE GAVE ME AND HE GAVE ME $500 TO HAVE IT MOUNTED— RUDY TOOK IT OVER TO DICK KANNALY AND HE SAID IT WAS ONE OF THE FINEST GEMS HE EVER SAW. STEVE OWNS THE MINE THIS DIAMOND CAME FROM
THERE WOULD BE A GREAT CATCH FOR SOME GIRL AND HE'S OF AN AGE WHERE I'D IMAGINE HE WOULDN'T PICK OUT A FLAPPER
IF YOU'RE FIGURING ON ENTERING THE CONTEST, JUST TEAR UP YOUR APPLICATION— HE LIKES THE CHUBBY TYPE. HE'S MAD ABOUT THIS WIDOW MRS SONJOHN HERE— SHE'S GOT HIS HEAD GOING AROUND LIKE A PHONOGRAPH RECORD!

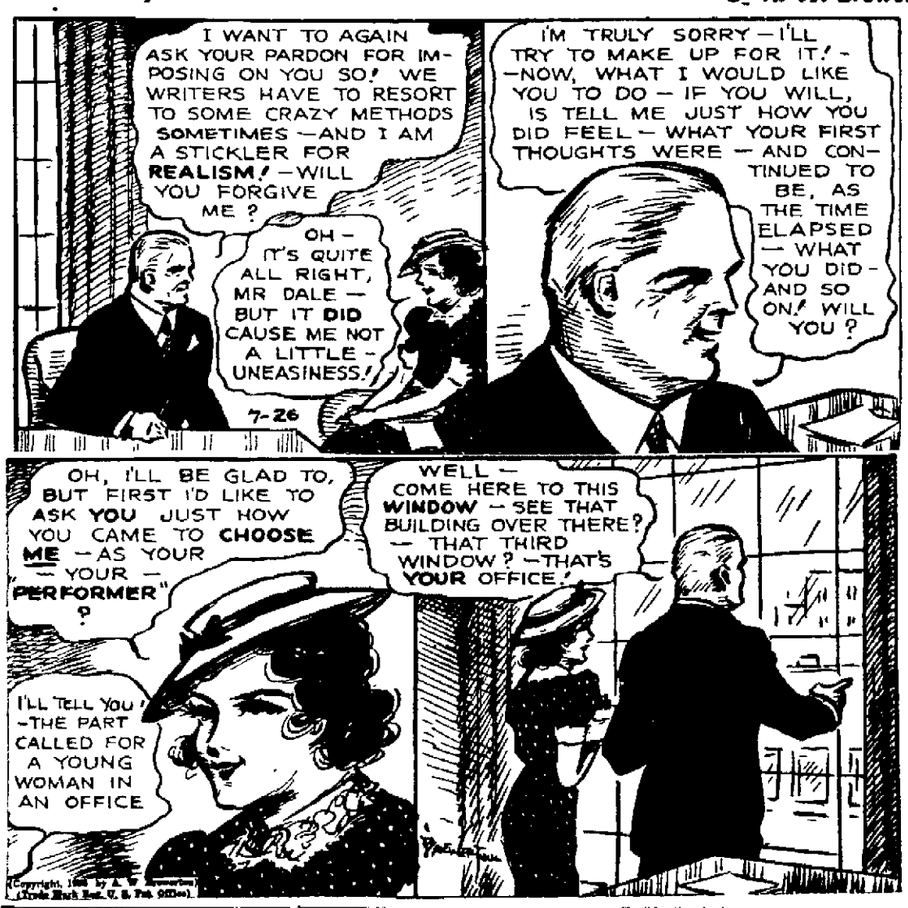
PAM—"Why Choose Me?" By A. W. Brewerton



I WANT TO AGAIN ASK YOUR PARDON FOR IMPOSING ON YOU SO! WE WRITERS HAVE TO RESORT TO SOME CRAZY METHODS SOMETIMES—AND I AM A STICKLER FOR REALISM!—WILL YOU FORGIVE ME?
OH— IT'S QUITE ALL RIGHT, MR DALE— BUT IT DID CAUSE ME NOT A LITTLE— UNEASINESS!
I'M TRULY SORRY—I'LL TRY TO MAKE UP FOR IT!—NOW, WHAT I WOULD LIKE YOU TO DO— IF YOU WILL, IS TELL ME JUST HOW YOU DID FEEL— WHAT YOUR FIRST THOUGHTS WERE— AND CONTINUED TO BE, AS THE TIME ELAPSED— WHAT YOU DID— AND SO ON! WILL YOU?
7-26
OH, I'LL BE GLAD TO, BUT FIRST I'D LIKE TO ASK YOU JUST HOW YOU CAME TO CHOOSE ME—AS YOUR—YOUR—"PERFORMER"?
I'LL TELL YOU—THE PART CALLED FOR A YOUNG WOMAN IN AN OFFICE
WELL— COME HERE TO THIS WINDOW—SEE THAT BUILDING OVER THERE? —THAT THIRD WINDOW?—THAT'S YOUR OFFICE!

MART SLOWS UP, LEADERS DROP 1 TO 2 POINTS

Declines Scattered Throughout Market as Profit-Taking Stops Sharp Rise.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market was hit by profit-taking today, following its sharp rise into new high ground in the two preceding sessions. Leaders dropped 1 to more than 2 points on a broad front.

U. S. Steel preferred opened up ¼ at 110, after yesterday's rise of 1¼, the advance coming in the face of a drop of almost 2 points in the company's common shares.

Westinghouse Electric, du Pont, American Can, Eastman Kodak and Chrysler each were off more than 2 points at one time, but the last named recovered about half its loss later in the morning.

Declines of a point or more were scattered throughout the market. Included in this classification were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, General Motors, Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, American Car and Foundry, Case, Texas Corp., and International Harvester.

A few isolated issues maintained independent strength. Oliver Farm rose better than a point, while American Telephone, relatively ackward through much of the recent rise, jumped close to 2 points.

delay in starting the $1,000,000 county-wide program, Kelly asserted.

"For several months the county had few projects ready for approval at Washington, and the list of eligible workers increased to such an extent that it is difficult to get them all jobs in a short time, even under a big program," he declared.

The county's road and bridge projects and the Woodland waterworks, and the street and sidewalk projects in Mansfield are employing most of the WPA workers in the county.

Amusements

Present 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.'

For the first time in recent years the great melodramatic classic of the American stage, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be presented in Mansfield when the Madge Kinsey Players are seen in a revival of it at their tent theater on West Second street tomorrow.

Like "Ten Nights In a Barroom" which the Kinsey Players presented here last year, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be played "straight." There will be no "modernization," no liberties taken with the dialogue.

It will be presented just as it was before the Civil war, with Little Eva dying and "going to Heaven," Eliza will cross the ice with the hounds after her, and Uncle Tom will be flogged to death in the old melodramatic manner.

Bette Kinsey Graf will play Topsy, Otis Imig will be seen as "Marks" the lawyer, while little Ruth Swaney, a Mansfield youngster with dramatic talent, will play Little Eva.

SAWYER SCOFFS AT NEW CHARGE

Calls Davey Claim He Arranged Loan to Papers 'Silly' in Reply to Radio Talk.

The Brush-Moore chain publishes newspapers at Canton, Portsmouth, Marion, Salem, Steubenville and East Liverpool.

It formerly operated the Mansfield News, before the latter was acquired by the Journal, and a consolidation effected.

Speaking at the Chillicothe rally, Sawyer urged closer co-operation between federal, state and local agencies on matters concerning agriculture, conservation and flood control.

"Your Scioto Sandusky conservancy district would have been functioning long before this if there had been a little more willingness at Columbus to co-operate unselfishly and properly with federal authorities," he said.

U. S. BUSINESS LEADERS DRAFT 'HARMONY PLAN'

Industrial Group Mapping Peace Program With Labor to Aid Recovery.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A far-reaching program calling for harmonious relations and close economic co-operation between industry and labor is being formulated by 16 of the nation's foremost business leaders.

This industrial group, organized last April through the efforts of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, hopes to draw up a comprehensive business-labor peace plan between now and the time congress assembles in January.

Sources close to the group disclosed today that the majority of its members feel that industry's relations with labor in the United States must be brought into closer harmony if current economic problems are to be solved.

10 Years Behind.

It is the view of many of the group that industry's handling of the labor problem is obsolete in the light of the present day economy. The group is in agreement that in this respect American industry is at least eight to ten years behind the more progressive policies instituted in Great Britain.

Although the group was formed originally to promote teamwork between government and industry, members have reached the conclusion that no such co-operation can succeed without the assistance of labor.

For this reason concerted efforts will be made over the next few months to bring into unanimity the conflicting views of large industrial organizations and labor leaders.

Those serving on the group of business representatives include Sydney G. McAllister, president, International Harvester company; Alfred L. Aiken, New York Life Insurance company; Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman, Chase National bank; Charles A. Cannon, president, Cannon Mills; Walter J. Cummings, chairman, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Frederick H. Ecker, chairman, Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Also John M. Franklin, president, International Mercantile company; Robert M. Hanes, Wachovia Bank and Trust company; Robert Wood Johnson, president, Johnson and Johnson corporation; Thomas I. Parkinson, president, Equitable Life Assurance society; William C. Potter, chairman, Guaranty Trust company; S. Clay Williams, chairman, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company; Clarence M. Woolley, president, American Radiator company; Owen D. Young, chairman, General Electric; Robert H. Cabell, president, Armour and company, and Edward D. Duffield, president, Prudential Insurance company.

Spokesmen for the group disclosed that conversations with labor representatives currently are going forward.

The ultimate objective, they declared, would be an economic trinity composed of the employer, the worker and the government.

RENEWS QUIZ IN CAMPAIGN FUND

Columbus Grand Jury Calls More Witnesses In New Charges.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The Franklin county special grand jury investigating reports that solicitation of campaign fund from civil service employes has started up again, called more witnesses today.

So far the investigators have indicted 17 persons on a total of 29 counts, all charging violation of the state civil service laws Although the indicted persons have entered pleas challenging validity of the special grand jury, the trial date has not been set.

Will P. Stephenson, assistant attorney general, said that he did not know how many new witnesses would be called.

RELIEF FROM HEAT IN SIGHT

Showers Likely Tonight Or Wednesday; Mercury Hits 90.

Local showers may bring slight relief tonight or Wednesday from the heat wave which sent the mercury to 90 degrees Monday afternoon, the weather bureau predicted today.

The weather will be cloudy, but there was no assurance that there would be a decided drop in the mercury even if showers occur.

The temperature at noon today was 82 degrees, and indications were that partly overcast skies would keep it below yesterday's high

VOTE TESTS IN 6 STATES NEAR

New Deal Democrats, Some With President's 'Blessing,' in Final Campaign Drive.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Democratic candidates in six states launched into their final campaigning this week before early-August primaries testing President Roosevelt's party leadership as well as their own vote-drawing power.

A week from today—Aug. 2—primary elections will take place in Kansas, Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia. Two days later Tennessee Democrats will pick their candidates, and Aug. 6 will come the bitterly contested Kentucky primary.

In no other intra-party race has the administration so large a stake in prestige as in Kentucky, where Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley is opposed for renomination by Gov. A. B. Chandler. But elsewhere issues have been drawn which may result in concrete indications of voter reaction to the president's recent plea for election of liberals over conservatives.

Mr. Roosevelt made a direct appear early in July for Barkley's renomination and re-election. His experience, he said, was needed in Washington.

Vote On State, U. S. Offices.

Only national house members and state officials are up for nomination in the Virginias. In the eighth Virginia district much attention has been attracted by the campaign of William E. Dodd, jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany, for the seat of Rep. Howard W. Smith.

Dodd contends that Smith "let the president down" by opposing the wage-hour bill and various other administration measures.

In Missouri Sen. Bennett Champ Clark who hasn't by any means gone the whole way with Mr. Roosevelt is up for renomination. His opponents include two men who call themselves "100 per cent New Dealers"—Willis H. Meredith, former speaker of the house, and Joseph T. Davis, St. Louis attorney.

In Kansas, Sen. George McGill, a staunch Roosevelt supporter, is seeking renomination. His only Democratic opponent, Joe Dohner, filed at the last minute.

The Kansas Republican primary took on a measure of national importance when Chairman John Hamilton asked party voters not to nominate the Rev. Gerald Winrod for senator. Winrod was accused recently by nine Kansas ministers of Nazi and Fascist sympathies.

Other Republican candidates are Clyde M. Reed, former governor; Dallas Knapp, former state senator, and the Rev. J. C. Fisher.

In Tennessee the issue of state control of the Democratic party overshadowes all other questions. The forces of E. H. Crump, Memphis political leader, and Sen. K. O. McKellar are lined up against those of Gov. Gordon Browning, who is seeking renomination.

Sen. George L. Berry, a Browning appointee, is seeking renomination. The Crump-McKellar group has endorsed a district attorney general, A. T. Stewart, to oppose him, and there also are other candidates.

ATTEND CREDIT SESSION

W. E. Stough, Springfield township president of the Ashland Production Credit association, and five other officers and directors of the association, returned Saturday from Granville where they attended the annual two-day session of farm credit association directors in Ohio. Among the others who represented the Ashland district were Wade Welch of Polk, vice president; Harold G Olin, Ashland, secretary-treasurer, and F. C. Schnell, Millersburg, director.

ROTARY DISTRICT OFFICIALS HERE

Presidents, Secretaries of 47 Clubs in City; New President in Charge.

Presidents and secretaries of 47 Rotary clubs of the 157th district of Rotary International met at Westbrook Country club today for the first district assembly presided over by the new district governor Rev. Charles A. Hoot of Orrville.

Morning and afternoon sessions were devoted to discussions of various phases of Rotary, with special emphasis on need of preparation for next year's international convention, to be held in Cleveland.

Visitors met with the Mansfield club at noon, with President R. D. Iden presiding. The talk was given by District Governor Hoot and singing was led by Harper Garcia Smyth of the Cleveland club, with Walter J. Glick, of Lorain, at the piano.

A dinner meeting of the board of directors of the Mansfield club with the district governor is planned for this evening.

YOUNG GUNMAN SENT TO PEN ON THREE CHARGES AT ASHLAND

ASHLAND—Judge C. C. Chapman sentenced Frank Willard, 24, young gunman, on three indictments here Monday. He is to serve from one to 20 years in the penitentiary for shooting with intent to kill, one to 20 years for operating an automobile without the owner's consent and one to three years for carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

At Wooster Saturday, Willard was sentenced to serve from ten to 25 years for armed robbery. After sentences were imposed here, all of which are to run concurrently with the Wayne county sentences, Willard was taken back to Wooster by Sheriff Ed Mills and Deputy Sheriff James Shelly. Mills said that he expects to take him to the penitentiary today.

Had Previous Record.

Willard, a Jamaica, L. I., youth who served a term at the federal reformatory and New York state prison, was captured at Loudonville May 5 when he lost a gun battle with Marshal R. G. Schnittke of Loudonville and State Patrolman L. D. Alexander and C. B. Tieben who attempted to arrest him after he had held up the Zarlengo cafe in Wooster. He was committed to the county jail in Wooster.

From there Willard and two other youths in jail on chicken theft charges, Charles Ellen and Paul Bartrum of Wooster, escaped. After 12 hours, they were arrested near Columbus, having committed two holdups. He waived service on all indictments Monday giving pleas of guilty. He had tried to escape Loudonville officers in a Lincoln Zephyr owned by the Boulevard Motor company at Jersey City, N. J. Willard said that his career of crime had been followed "to make money."

STAGES DERBY

Shelby Holds Soap Box Race on Main Street Tomorrow.

SHELBY—Shelby's second annual Soap Box derby will be held on Main street Wednesday afternoon. In connection with the derby this year will be a 25-mile bicycle race which will open the program at 1:25 p. m.

The race will start from the Central school bandstand, go west to Gamble street, north on Gamble street to Plymouth, from Plymouth south on the Bunker Hill road to the Shelby Country club, west to Taylortown and then north to the East Main street road into Shelby. The finish line will be at Wentz avenue where a bulletin board on the progress of the race will be kept, officials stated.

The Soap Box derby will start at approximately 3 p. m. on Main street hill. About 50 contestants will participate this year.

PICK HEALTHIEST

BUCYRUS—Dr. G. T. Wasson, county health commissioner and his staff of nurses will be in charge of a contest to be held Wednesday in which Crawford county's healthiest 4-H club boy and girl will be selected.

Winners will be selected from a small group chosen at elimination meetings throughout the county, conducted by Miss Lucile Smith, county home demonstration agent.

Winners will receive a trip to the state fair to compete in the state contest, as their prize.

GIFFORD PICKED BY LAWYERS FOR DISTRICT OFFICE

Mansfield Lawyer Elected at State Bar Meeting; Editor Talks at ABA Session.

Atty. W. H. Gifford, Mansfield, today had been elected Fifth district vice president of the Ohio Bar association at the semi-annual state convention in Cleveland.

Atty. Gifford was a delegate to the convention from Richland county, which is included in the Fifth district.

Howard Barkdull, Cleveland, was elected president of the state bar association. He succeeds Walter S. Ruff of Canton. John L. W. Henney of Columbus was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

A number of Mansfield attorneys were in Cleveland to attend the state sessions and meetings of the American Bar association which is holding its convention in conjunction with the state group.

The state association defeated by a large majority a committee recommendation that law firms be banned from using the name of a deceased partner in the firm's title more than two years after the partner's death.

Defer Decision.

Decision as to the holding of a referendum by the association on Ohio Supreme court candidates was deferred until the executive committee holds a special meeting at Columbus Aug. 19.

Speaking before the American Bar association today, N. R. Howard, editor of the Cleveland News, said: "We see the recognition in every city in America today of the newspaper's first obligation as a fact-finder, not as the leader of any manner of thought."

He urged the local bar associations to arouse and crystallize public opinion in a more forceful manner than they do now.

"In a large sense," he said, "the performance of our courts is the insurance of our democratic government. I believe the public feels this as never before. I believe the public will accept the leadership of the bar on judicial performance far beyond what the average bar association thinks.

"And when the public lines up the issue, the press is close by, neither far ahead nor behind; which is to say, we will work with the bar for better courts in the exact degree that the bar shows that its leadership is not hesitant or selfish."

OK'S PROGRAM

PWA Division Gives Approval on Ashland Road Project.

ASHLAND — County Engineer L. G. Shenberger has been informed by John F. Wagner, senior office engineer of the Akron PWA office, that the project control division of the Public Works Administration in Washington has approved Ashland county's county-wide road improvement program.

On July 27 the project will be submitted to the bureau of budget.

If given ultimate approval, the project will bring about the construction of 9.57 miles of Ashland county township roads.

Grand Jury Quiz Into '5 Per Cent' Looms In Ashland

ASHLAND—An investigation of the alleged five per cent assessments against state highway employes for Gov. Martin L. Davey's campaign fund loomed today in Ashland county as Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman called a special session of the grand jury for Aug. 1.

Although the judge said the jury would be asked "to investigate any crimes that have been comitted in the county," he indicated the attention of the jury might be directed to the case of a highway employe in the county whose job was abolished because he allegedly refused to contribute to the campaign fund.

Judge Chapman said Atty. General Herbert S. Duffy had offered to send an assistant to Ashland to aid in the investigation. Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling, however, said he has had no correspondence with the attorney general pertaining to the matter, and declined to comment on the possibility of an investigation of the alleged campaign "shake-down."

The case of the highway worker whose job was abolished is before the civil service commission, Judge Chapman said. The worker, it was said, protested to the commission after his job was abolished.

OFFER HELP ON SALES TAX WORK

Examiner To Assist Village Merchants To Prepare Returns.

Merchants and vendors in Plymouth, Shiloh, Lexington and Lucas will be aided Wednesday by sales tax examiners in making out their sales tax returns, Mrs. Edith Metcalf, one of the examiners, said today.

Mrs. Metcalf will be at Shaffer's grocery in Shiloh Wednesday morning and at the People's bank in Plymouth in the afternoon.

H. H. Hering, another examiner, will be at the Kroger store in Lexington Wednesday morning and at the State bank in Lucas in the afternoon.

Merchants in the four villages may call on the examiners for information in filing their returns.

MRS. SNURR, 87, TAKEN BY DEATH

PERRYSVILLE — Mrs. Elizabeth Snurr, 87, widow of Henry Snurr, died Monday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Kiner, west of here, following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Snurr was born Feb. 21, 1851, near Newville, and was a member of St. John's Lutheran church. Surviving are two children, Frank Snurr of near Mansfield, and Mrs. Kiner; five grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday from the home of her daughter with Rev. George Schrack, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the old Perrysville cemetery.

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS TODAY

Two Mansfielders Due to Be Named to New Posts Without Contest.

Delegates to the Ohio Department of the American Legion, meeting for the 20th annual convention in Cincinnati, were to vote today on a new state commander and new state officers.

Candidates for the office of commander, now held by James V. Suhr of Cleveland, were Eli A. Jensen of Springfield, business manager of Wittenberg college, and Capt. J. W. Bowen, Hillsboro, an official of the telephone company there and present vice-commander.

Two Mansfielders were due to be elected to new posts without opposition. They were R. B. Gardner, present fifth district commander, for vice commander of the state, and Mrs. Walter Beckley, unopposed candidate for the presidency of the state auxiliary.

Among the resolutions adopted called for "strenuous opposition" of the inclusion of the Veterans Bureau in a new federal department of welfare; and one urging the limitation of employment in all federal, state, county and local governments to citizens of the United States.

CITY'S UNPAID RELIEF BILLS HIT $35,000

April Debt of $12,000 Paid But No Money's in Sight to Meet Deficit.

The city of Mansfield today paid relief bills totaling nearly $12,000 for the month of April—but still faced an indebtedness of $35,000 with no funds in sight.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelly said that relief checks totaling $11,960 have been sent out leaving the relief fund $3,621 overdrawn. Kelley explained however, that the deficit would be accounted for by the next monthly allocation of state funds. This will amount to approximately $5,000. Part of the allocation is used for administration costs which averages $1,100 monthly while the remainder is applied on the payment of food bills.

Await Court Action.

Meanwhile city officials faced with a staggering relief load looked to common pleas court for action on a petition filed three months ago, seeking the transfer of $50,000 from the sinking fund to the poor relief fund.

Judge C. H. Huston who has the petition under advisement held a hearing on the request two weeks ago. City officials who at first considered their request hopeless because of legal technicalities, have been given new hope as the result of learning that a similar request made by the school board several years ago had been approved.

BIG WEEDS

I STOOD at the edge of the melon patch, and my heart sank. All I saw was weeds. The green expanse of waving tops, looked like a wilderness of ragweed, dogrennel and smartweed.

Along the rows of melon hills, I found the spots, where after earlier rains I had cleared the ground around the seedling plants. Here sturdy blooming vines were struggling hard, and stretching sinuous, adventurous tendrils toward the growth that, two feet high, walled them on every side.

I firmly grasped my hoe and began to move along the row, cutting a swath that left the encroaching weeds lying prone and the vigorous vines, with their small yellow blossoms, standing perkily among the ruins.

Rip, rip! The matted roots tore out of the mellow soil with a sound that pleased me. My spirits began to rise. After all the task was not impossible. A persistent hoe is a formidable weapon! At the end of the first row, I mopped my face and rested on the hoe handle. Across the shaded brown curves of the newly planted buckwheat field, the shadows played and melted into the woods. The old gray farmhouse nestled among its vines and hollyhocks. The wind was warm and fresh and fragrant.

Rip rip! I pulled weeds a while by hand, and piled them as I went. The soil beneath was damp, dark and mellow. I wondered what unknown usefulness might be in the plants I was discarding. Perhaps some wealth of undiscovered food or healing.

For several mornings I worked so. Then I stood at the edge of the patch and smiled. The rows of fruitful vines were clearly marked. The disk and tractor could do the rest. I felt keen satisfaction. When a man rids his garden of big weeds, the result is more apparent—even if not so commendable—than if he had kept it clean from the first.

CLASH OVER OIL SEEN IN ORIENT

Harvard Professor Declares Lubricant Will Always Be Cause of Conflict.

SAN FRANCISCO — Japan's expansion program of creating by force a powerful industrial and economic center in the Far East is unsound even from a purely economic point of view, according to Dr. J. Anton de Haas, professor of international relations at Harvard university.

Addressing Pacific coast audiences, Dr. de Haas declared that the success of this policy would bring neither peace nor security for Japan and would make instead the whole problem even more difficult.

"It is a mistaken policy," he said, "to establish another work shop in the world which already has too many at the present time, and the creation of one in the Far East with Japan as its center would result only in increased social tension inside Japan and trade restrictions from without."

Dr. de Haas declared that the real tragedy of the Pacific is the futility of conflict for the reason that economic factors and forces will continue always to prepare the ground for new conflicts in the future with oil as the symbol for the next conflict to come.

This conflict he envisaged as one between Japan and the Netherlands for the possession of the oil fields of the Netherlands Indies.

"Oil fields of Borneo and Sumatra," he said "represented more than 8 per cent of the oil resources of the West Pacific and they will become ever increasingly important to Japan both from the standpoint of its navy and industry.

"The Dutch have no illusions of grandeur. In case of conflict, Japan would have every advantage, but Holland is already making preparations for defense.

Roosevelt Tries Hand as News Writer, 'Covers' Sea Ceremony

(By International News Service)

ABOARD THE U. S. S HOUSTON, ALBEMARLE ISLAND, GALAPAGOS GROUP (Via Navy Radio)—Stephen E. Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, was expected to resume his duties today after the shellacking he took yesterday at the hands of hardened old shellbacks and members of King Neptune's court.

As the ship lay at anchor off Albemarle island, late yesterday, President Roosevelt himself took over the duties of correspondent for the press after he had finished an afternoon of fishing which found his luck still "the best."

In a message to International News Service, the president said:

"The cruiser Houston late today (Monday) anchored for an overnight stay off the west coast of Albemarle island, largest member of the Galapagos group. It was 100 per cent a shellback ship.

"King Neptune with Davey Jones and his royal court boarded early in the morning while the Houston was on its way from San Salvador island to Albemarle President Roosevelt and the shellback members of his party spent the forenoon on the communication platform looking down upon the quarterdeck where King Neptune presided over the initiation of the Pollywogs, more than 300 of whom were given 'the royal works.'

"As soon as the ship's anchor dropped, the president was off in a small boat to survey the islands' shores and to fish.

"The weather was clear with few scattered low clouds in the late evening and early morning."

Near Death She Bucks Operation; Won't Have Beauty Scarred.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Ada Leonard, a burlesque "strip tease" queen, staked her shapely unmarred figure against life itself today.

The stately brunet has refused to undergo an operation for the removal of her appendix although she is in a critical condition from peritonitis.

Dr. Karl Meyer, attending physician and chief surgeon at the Cook county hospital, said ice packs had failed to localize the infection when she was stricken ten days ago.

The appendix ruptured and peritonitis developed but the glamorous Ada still balked at having her beauty scarred.

U. S. BUSINESS LEADERS DRAFT 'HARMONY PLAN'

Industrial Group Mapping Peace Program With Labor to Aid Recovery.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — A far-reaching program calling for harmonious relations and close economic co-operation between industry and labor is being formulated by 16 of the nation's foremost business leaders.

This industrial group, organized last April through the efforts of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, hopes to draw up a comprehensive business-labor peace plan between now and the time congress assembles in January.

Sources close to the group disclosed today that the majority of its members feel that industry's relations with labor in the United States must be brought into closer harmony if current economic problems are to be solved.

10 Years Behind.

It is the view of many of the group that industry's handling of the labor problem is obsolete in the light of the present day economy. The group is in agreement that in this respect American industry is at least eight to ten years behind the more progressive policies instituted in Great Britain.

Although the group was formed originally to promote teamwork between government and industry, members have reached the conclusion that no such co-operation can succeed without the assistance of labor.

For this reason concerted efforts will be made over the next few months to bring into unanimity the conflicting views of large industrial organizations and labor leaders.

Those serving on the group of business representatives include Sydney G. McAllister, president, International Harvester company; Alfred L. Aiken, New York Life Insurance company; Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman, Chase National bank; Charles A. Cannon, president, Cannon Mills; Walter J. Cummings, chairman, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company; Frederick H. Ecker, chairman, Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

Also John M. Franklin, president, International Mercantile company; Robert M. Hanes, Wachovia Bank and Trust company; Robert Wood Johnson, president, Johnson and Johnson corporation; Thomas I. Parkinson, president, Equitable Life Assurance society; William C. Potter, chairman, Guaranty Trust company; S. Clay Williams, chairman, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company; Clarence M. Woolley, president, American Radiator company; Owen D. Young, chairman, General Electric; Robert H. Cabell, president, Armour and company, and Edward D. Duffield, president, Prudential Insurance company.

Spokesmen for the group disclosed that conversations with labor representatives currently are going forward.

The ultimate objective, they declared, would be an economic trinity composed of the employer, the worker and the government.

RENEWS QUIZ IN CAMPAIGN FUND

Columbus Grand Jury Calls More Witnesses In New Charges.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The Franklin county special grand jury investigating reports that solicitation of campaign fund from civil service employes has started up again, called more witnesses today.

So far the investigators have indicted 17 persons on a total of 29 counts, all charging violation of the state civil service laws. Although the indicted persons have entered pleas challenging validity of the special grand jury, the trial date has not been set.

Will P. Stephenson, assistant attorney general, said that he did not know how many new witnesses would be called.

RELIEF FROM HEAT IN SIGHT

Showers Likely Tonight Or Wednesday; Mercury Hits 90.

Local showers may bring slight relief tonight or Wednesday from the heat wave which sent the mercury to 90 degrees Monday afternoon, the weather bureau predicted today.

The weather will be cloudy, but there was no assurance that there would be a decided drop in the mercury even if showers occur.

The temperature at noon today was 82 degrees, and indications were that partly overcast skies would keep it below yesterday's high

VOTE TESTS IN 6 STATES NEAR

New Deal Democrats, Some With President's 'Blessing,' in Final Campaign Drive.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Democratic candidates in six states launched into their final campaigning this week before early-August primaries testing President Roosevelt's party leadership as well as their own vote-drawing power.

A week from today—Aug. 2—primary elections will take place in Kansas, Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia. Two days later Tennessee Democrats will pick their candidates, and Aug. 6 will come the bitterly contested Kentucky primary.

In no other intra-party race has the administration so large a stake in prestige as in Kentucky, where Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley is opposed for renomination by Gov. A. B. Chandler. But elsewhere issues have been drawn which may result in concrete indications of voter reaction to the president's recent plea for election of liberals over conservatives.

Mr. Roosevelt made a direct appear early in July for Barkley's renomination and re-election. His experience, he said, was needed in Washington.

Vote On State, U. S. Offices.

Only national house members and state officials are up for nomination in the Virginias. In the eighth Virginia district much attention has been attracted by the campaign of William E. Dodd, jr., son of the former ambassador to Germany, for the seat of Rep. Howard W. Smith.

Dodd contends that Smith "let the president down" by opposing the wage-hour bill and various other administration measures.

In Missouri Sen. Bennett Champ Clark who hasn't by any means gone the whole way with Mr. Roosevelt is up for renomination. His opponents include two men who call themselves "100 per cent New Dealers"—Willis H. Meredith, former speaker of the house, and Joseph T. Davis, St. Louis attorney.

In Kansas, Sen. George McGill, a staunch Roosevelt supporter, is seeking renomination. His only Democratic opponent, Joe Dohner, filed at the last minute.

The Kansas Republican primary took on a measure of national importance when Chairman John Hamilton asked party voters not to nominate the Rev. Gerald Winrod for senator. Winrod was accused recently by nine Kansas ministers of Nazi and Fascist sympathies.

Other Republican candidates are Clyde M. Reed, former governor; Dallas Knapp, former state senator, and the Rev. J. C. Fisher.

In Tennessee the issue of state control of the Democratic party overshadowes all other questions. The forces of E. H. Crump, Memphis political leader, and Sen. K. O. McKellar are lined up against those of Gov. Gordon Browning, who is seeking renomination

Sen. George L. Berry, a Browning appointee, is seeking renomination. The Crump-McKellar group has endorsed a district attorney general, A. T. Stewart, to oppose him, and there also are other candidates.

ATTEND CREDIT SESSION

W. E. Stough, Springfield township, president of the Ashland Production Credit association, and five other officers and directors of the association, returned Saturday from Granville where they attended the annual two-day session of farm credit association directors in Ohio. Among the others who represented the Ashland district were Wade Welch of Polk, vice president, Harold G. Olin, Ashland, secretary-treasurer, and F. C. Schnell, Millersburg, director.

YOUNG GUNMAN SENT TO PEN ON THREE CHARGES AT ASHLAND

ASHLAND—Judge C. C. Chapman sentenced Frank Willard, 24, young gunman, on three indictments here Monday. He is to serve from one to 20 years in the penitentiary for shooting with intent to kill, one to 20 years for operating an automobile without the owner's consent and one to three years for carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

At Wooster Saturday, Willard was sentenced to serve from ten to 25 years for armed robbery. After sentences were imposed here, all of which are to run concurrently with the Wayne county sentences, Willard was taken back to Wooster by Sheriff Ed Mills and Deputy Sheriff James Shelly. Mills said that he expects to take him to the penitentiary today.

Had Previous Record.

Willard, a Jamaica, L. I., youth who served a term at the federal reformatory and New York state prison, was captured at Loudonville May 5 when he lost a gun battle with Marshal R. G. Schnittke of Loudonville and State Patrolman L. D. Alexander and C. B. Tieben who attempted to arrest him after he had held up the Zarlengo cafe in Wooster. He was committed to the county jail in Wooster.

From there Willard and two other youths in jail on chicken theft charges, Charles Ellen and Paul Bartrum of Wooster, escaped. After 12 hours, they were arrested near Columbus, having committed two holdups. He waived service on all indictments Monday giving pleas of guilty. He had tried to escape Loudonville officers in a Lincoln Zephyr owned by the Boulevard Motor company at Jersey City, N. J. Willard said that his career of crime had been followed "to make money."

STAGES DERBY

Shelby Holds Soap Box Race on Main Street Tomorrow.

SHELBY—Shelby's second annual Soap Box derby will be held on Main street Wednesday afternoon. In connection with the derby this year will be a 25-mile bicycle race which will open the program at 1:25 p. m.

The race will start from the Central school bandstand, go west to Gamble street, north on Gamble street to Plymouth, from Plymouth south on the Bunker Hill road to the Shelby Country club, west to Taylortown and then north to the East Main street road into Shelby. The finish line will be at Wentz avenue where a bulletin board on the progress of the race will be kept, officials stated.

The Soap Box derby will start at approximately 3 p. m. on Main street hill. About 50 contestants will participate this year.

PICK HEALTHIEST

BUCYRUS—Dr. G. T. Wasson, county health commissioner and his staff of nurses will be in charge of a contest to be held Wednesday in which Crawford county's healthiest 4-H club boy and girl will be selected.

Winners will be selected from a small group chosen at elimination meetings throughout the county, conducted by Miss Lucile Smith, county home demonstration agent.

Winners will receive a trip to the state fair to compete in the state contest, as their prize.

Grand Jury Quiz Into '5 Per Cent' Looms In Ashland

ASHLAND—An investigation of the alleged five per cent assessments against state highway employes for Gov. Martin L. Davey's campaign fund loomed today in Ashland county as Common Pleas Judge C. C. Chapman called a special session of the grand jury for Aug. 1.

Although the judge said the jury would be asked "to investigate any crimes that have been comitted in the county," he indicated the attention of the jury might be directed to the case of a highway employe in the county whose job was abolished because he allegedly refused to contribute to the campaign fund.

Judge Chapman said Atty. General Herbert S. Duffy had offered to send an assistant to Ashland to aid in the investigation. Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling, however, said he has had no correspondence with the attorney general pertaining to the matter, and declined to comment on the possibility of an investigation of the alleged campaign "shake-down."

The case of the highway worker whose job was abolished is before the civil service commission, Judge Chapman said. The worker, it was said, protested to the commission after his job was abolished.

GIFFORD PICKED BY LAWYERS FOR DISTRICT OFFICE

Mansfield Lawyer Elected at State Bar Meeting; Editor Talks at ABA Session.

Atty. W. H. Gifford, Mansfield, today had been elected Fifth district vice president of the Ohio Bar association at the semi-annual state convention in Cleveland.

Atty. Gifford was a delegate to the convention from Richland county, which is included in the Fifth district.

Howard Barkdull, Cleveland, was elected president of the state bar association. He succeeds Walter S. Ruff of Canton. John L. W. Henney of Columbus was re-elected secretary and treasurer.

A number of Mansfield attorneys were in Cleveland to attend the state sessions and meetings of the American Bar association which is holding its convention in conjunction with the state group.

The state association defeated by a large majority a committee recommendation that law firms be banned from using the name of a deceased partner in the firm's title more than two years after the partner's death.

Defer Decision.

Decision as to the holding of a referendum by the association on Ohio Supreme court candidates was deferred until the executive committee holds a special meeting at Columbus Aug. 19.

Speaking before the American Bar association today, N. R. Howard, editor of the Cleveland News, said: "We see the recognition in every city in America today of the newspaper's first obligation as a fact-finder, not as the leader of any manner of thought."

He urged the local bar associations to arouse and crystallize public opinion in a more forceful manner than they do now.

"In a large sense," he said, "the performance of our courts is the insurance of our democratic government. I believe the public feels this as never before. I believe the public will accept the leadership of the bar on judicial performance far beyond what the average bar association thinks.

"And when the public lines up the issue, the press is close by, neither far ahead nor behind; which is to say, we will work with the bar for better courts in the exact degree that the bar shows that its leadership is not hesitant or selfish."

OK'S PROGRAM

PWA Division Gives Approval on Ashland Road Project.

ASHLAND — County Engineer L. G. Shenberger has been informed by John F. Wagner, senior office engineer of the Akron PWA office, that the project control division of the Public Works Administration in Washington has approved Ashland county's county-wide road improvement program.

On July 27 the project will be submitted to the bureau of budget.

If given ultimate approval, the project will bring about the construction of 9.57 miles of Ashland county township roads.

OFFER HELP ON SALES TAX WORK

Examiner To Assist Village Merchants To Prepare Returns.

Merchants and vendors in Plymouth, Shiloh, Lexington and Lucas will be aided Wednesday by sales tax examiners in making out their sales tax returns, Mrs. Edith Metcalf, one of the examiners, said today.

Mrs. Metcalf will be at Shaffer's grocery in Shiloh Wednesday morning and at the People's bank in Plymouth in the afternoon.

H. H. Hering, another examiner, will be at the Kroger store in Lexington Wednesday morning and at the State bank in Lucas in the afternoon.

Merchants in the four villages may call on the examiners for information in filing their returns.

PASSES EXAMINATION

Howard E. Whitacre of 165½ West Third street, was among the 91 Ohio persons who passed examinations before the Ohio Pharmaceutical board, an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus said today. Whitacre's home is in Springfield but he moved here recently and is employed in Mansfield.

MRS. SNURR, 87, TAKEN BY DEATH

PERRYSVILLE — Mrs. Elizabeth Snurr, 87, widow of Henry Snurr, died Monday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Kiner, west of here, following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Snurr was born Feb. 21, 1851, near Newville, and was a member of St. John's Lutheran church. Surviving are two children, Frank Snurr of near Mansfield, and Mrs. Kiner; five grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday from the home of her daughter with Rev. George Schrack, pastor of the Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in the old Perrysville cemetery.

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS TODAY

Two Mansfielders Due to Be Named to New Posts Without Contest.

Delegates to the Ohio Department of the American Legion, meeting for the 20th annual convention in Cincinnati, were to vote today on a new state commander and new state officers.

Candidates for the office of commander, now held by James V. Suhr of Cleveland, were Eli A. Jensen of Springfield, business manager of Wittenberg college, and Capt. J. W. Bowen, Hillsboro, an official of the telephone company there and present vice-commander.

Two Mansfielders were due to be elected to new posts without opposition. They were R. B. Gardner, present fifth district commander, for vice commander of the state, and Mrs. Walter Beckley, unopposed candidate for the presidency of the state auxiliary.

Among the resolutions adopted called for "strenuous opposition" of the inclusion of the Veterans Bureau in a new federal department of welfare; and one urging the limitation of employment in all federal, state, county and local governments to citizens of the United States.

CITY'S UNPAID RELIEF BILLS HIT $35,000

April Debt of $12,000 Paid But No Money's in Sight to Meet Deficit.

The city of Mansfield today paid relief bills totaling nearly $12,000 for the month of April—but still faced an indebtedness of $35,000 with no funds in sight.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelly said that relief checks totaling $11,960 have been sent out leaving the relief fund $3,621 overdrawn. Kelley explained however, that the deficit would be accounted for by the next monthly allocation of state funds. This will amount to approximately $5,000. Part of the allocation is used for administration costs which averages $1,100 monthly while the remainder is applied on the payment of food bills.

Await Court Action.

Meanwhile city officials faced with a staggering relief load looked to common pleas court for action on a petition filed three months ago, seeking the transfer of $50,000 from the sinking fund to the poor relief fund.

Judge C. H. Huston who has the petition under advisement held a hearing on the request two weeks ago. City officials who at first considered their request hopeless because of legal technicalities, have been given new hope as the result of learning that a similar request made by the school board several years ago had been approved.

CLASH OVER OIL SEEN IN ORIENT

Harvard Professor Declares Lubricant Will Always Be Cause of Conflict.

SAN FRANCISCO — Japan's expansion program of creating by force a powerful industrial and economic center in the Far East is unsound even from a purely economic point of view, according to Dr. J. Anton de Haas, professor of international relations at Harvard university.

Addressing Pacific coast audiences, Dr. de Haas declared that the success of this policy would bring neither peace nor security for Japan and would make instead the whole problem even more difficult.

"It is a mistaken policy," he said, "to establish another work shop in the world which already has too many at the present time, and the creation of one in the Far East with Japan as its center would result, only in increased social tension inside Japan and trade restrictions from without."

Dr. de Haas declared that the real tragedy of the Pacific is the futility of conflict for the reason that economic factors and forces will continue always to prepare the ground for new conflicts in the future with oil as the symbol for the next conflict to come.

This conflict he envisaged as one between Japan and the Netherlands for the possession of the oil fields of the Netherlands Indies.

"Oil fields of Borneo and Sumatra," he said "represented more than 8 per cent of the oil resources of the West Pacific and they will become ever increasingly important to Japan both from the standpoint of its navy and industry.

"The Dutch have no illusions of grandeur. In case of conflict, Japan would have every advantage, but Holland is already making preparations for defense.

Victorious 'Hillbilly,' Family

Victorious in the Texas Democratic gubernatorial primary, tantamount to election, W. Lee O'Daniel, the "hillbilly" band leader who made a shambles of Texas political precedent, assures his public he will be a "regular fellow" as governor and scoffs at the possibility of a dictatorship. O'Daniel, who defeated 11 opponents for the nomination, is a rich flour salesman who campaigned with a "hillbilly" band. He is shown above in his Ft. Worth home with his happy family following news of his victory. The children are, left to right, Molly, 16; Mike, 18, and Pat, 19.

Roosevelt Tries Hand as News Writer, 'Covers' Sea Ceremony

(By International News Service)

ABOARD THE U. S. S. HOUSTON, ALBEMARLE ISLAND, GALAPAGOS GROUP (Via Navy Radio)—Stephen E Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, was expected to resume his duties today after the shellacking he took yesterday at the hands of hardened old shellbacks and members of King Neptune's court.

As the ship lay at anchor off Albemarle island, late yesterday, President Roosevelt himself took over the duties of correspondent for the press after he had finished an afternoon of fishing which found his luck still "the best."

In a message to International News Service, the president said:

"The cruiser Houston late today (Monday) anchored for an overnight stay off the west coast of Albemarle island, largest member of the Galapagos group. It was 100 per cent a shellback ship.

"King Neptune with Davey Jones and his royal court boarded early in the morning while the Houston was on its way from San Salvador island to Albemarle. President Roosevelt and the shellback members of his party spent the forenoon on the communication platform looking down upon the quarterdeck where King Neptune presided over the initiation of the Pollywogs, more than 300 of whom were given 'the royal works.'

"As soon as the ship's anchor dropped, the president was off in a small boat to survey the islands' shores and to fish.

"The weather was clear with few scattered low clouds in the late evening and early morning."

'STRIP TEASE' QUEEN PROTESTS

Near Death She Bucks Operation; Won't Have Beauty Scarred.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Ada Leonard, a burlesque "strip tease" queen, staked her shapely unmarred figure against life itself today.

The stately brunet has refused to undergo an operation for the removal of her appendix although she is in a critical condition from peritonitis.

Dr. Karl Meyer, attending physician and chief surgeon at the Cook county hospital, said ice packs had failed to localize the infection when she was stricken ten days ago

The appendix ruptured and peritonitis developed but the glamorous Ada still balked at having her beauty scarred.

TUESDAY, JULY 26, 1938.

Wishing is the least tiring form of brain work.

Blessed is the man who can't make a political speech—and who knows that he can't.

Then again, some are inclined to suspect that the ship of state is being steered by a compass just like Corrigan's.

Things seemed to go better when "application" meant attentiveness to work, instead of appeal for government help.

Primaries Two Weeks From Today.

TWO WEEKS from today voters all over Ohio will be going to the polls to nominate party candidates for the November election.

Of outstanding importance, of course, are the nominations for United States senator and for governor of Ohio.

On the Democratic primary ticket there are contests for both of these offices—former Governor George White seeking the senatorial nomination against Robert J. Bulkley, present senator, and Charles Sawyer opposing Martin L. Davey, candidate for third term as governor.

Among Republicans there is a contest for nomination as senator, between Arthur H. Day, now on the state supreme court, and Robert A. Taft. John W. Bricker is the unopposed Republican candidate for nomination as governor.

The importance of nominating and electing high caliber men to both the United States senate and to the office of governor of Ohio can scarcely be overemphasized.

In theory, at least, it may be assumed as the intent of voters to choose the finest type of men in the state to these important public offices—men who not only have sufficient education and training to understand and perform the duties of their respective positions but who can also be depended upon to act unselfishly in behalf of all of the people, rather than serving their own interests or granting special favors or privileges to political or personal friends.

Men elected in November can be no better than those nominated in August. It is the intent of the primaries that all who customarily affiliate with the Democratic party ask for and vote a Democratic party ticket, and that Republicans vote a Republican party ticket, so that members of each of the parties do the deciding as to nominees.

Harmonizing State Laws.

THE PUBLIC needs to know more about the work of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. Composed of three members from each state, this group, year after year, studies the great mass of statutes with the purpose of sifting out those which conflict and drafting uniform laws on matters of more than local importance.

Among the laws studied at the current sessions of the conference are those on real estate mortgages, insurance regulation, survival of tort actions, death by wrongful act, house-trailer regulation and the aeronautical codes. Marriage and divorce laws are also recognized as greatly needing uniformity, but they were omitted from the program because of the recognized difficulty of reconciling state differences at this time.

Alexander Armstrong, president of the conference, opened a recent meeting with a strong plea for more action in putting over the body's recommendations. "We spend years in drafting acts," he said, "and then in many instances do nothing whatever to present them to the legislatures of our states and secure their adoption."

The job is one which greatly needs doing but in which progress is inevitably slow.

'Drink Cards' Proposed.

SEVERAL states have been seriously considering the idea of issuing "drink cards" to all persons to whom intoxicants can be legally sold, in the hope of eliminating sales to minors.

This has the appearance of being another bit of fallacious thinking such as has entered so largely into proposed legislation intended to restrict the liquor traffic.

Children are much inclined to follow the example of their elders, and it is difficult to make them understand why they should be discriminated against in the matter of alcoholic drinks, particularly as to "non-intoxicating" beer.

And, from the standpoint of taxes, it seems "poor business" to withhold intoxicants from young people, who are the very ones that must be depended upon to replace the older topers as they drop off.

Ohio's sale-by-the-drink liquor system is such as to encourage volume drinking rather than moderation—and the more that can be started young, the better the prospects for the future of big tax returns.

The German Collapse.

THE GERMANS were probably surprised at the collapse of their stock market on what may for a long time be known as "Black Monday." Their own newspapers described the sudden slump as sensational.

The rest of the world is not surprised. Germany is subject to the same difficulties with rising labor costs and rising taxes as other countries. It has also a governmental dictation subject to no control by constitutional safeguards nor by general public opinion. The government's financing of its own public works has no such backlog of natural or accumulated financial resources as those of this country or of Great Britain. The gold piece which comes out at the time of need in France has long since been used up in Germany.

There is also this factor: that if you harass and persecute the owners of your best financial and constructive genius, you must expect to get along for the future on a much lower financial level than when they were your honored helpers.

It was on April 8, 1930, that Will Rogers said: "The short memory of American voters is what keeps our politicians in office"—and he might as well have been writing for 1938.

Returning tourists report there is no great war in Europe this year—so Spain might as well get back to bull fights.

Politics may make "strange bedfellows"—but the bunk is still popular.

The world needs a vacation—from hate, fear and suspicion.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE'S civil liberties committee is getting at more facts—for the benefit of the American people—than any other senate committee in years. There is only one other member of this committee, Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, former university professor up for re-election this year. Both these men are sincere and able. And they have undertaken a thorough and often thankless task, for the pressure brought by large interests against them has been tremendous.

* * *

IMMENSE SUMS

Immense sums were spent by the Republic Steel corporation, of which Tom Girdler is chairman of the board, to fight organization of workers in legitimate unions and to turn the public mind against the C. I. O., according to evidence uncovered by the senate committee.

In five years Republic spent $1,425,696 to influence public opinion, records show.

Furthermore, it joined with other steel companies to smother legislation favorable to workers in the Ohio legislature.

Further evidence showed that George E. Sokolsky, a magazine writer on industrial and labor problems, received $28,000 in salary and expenses between June, 1936, and February, 1938, from the public relations firm of Hill & Knowlton, acting for the National Manufacturers' association.

Republic and five other steel firms paid the public relations company as high as $75,000 a month. The firm thereupon made a "study" of industrial relations, which the C. I. O. found to be an attack upon itself.

Efforts were made to get this "study" into hands of school teaches and into newspapers, of course.

* * *

PRESSURE

Pressure was used against newspapers. One letter of "advice" on procedure, in the committee records, urged that pressure be used on the leading newspapers of Birmingham, Ala., through advertisers, in order to get the papers to run "news" that favored Republic.

However, newspaper editors resisted all efforts.

The public relations men said they did all this in the interest of peace. But they could not explain away spies, secret police provocateurs, armed guards and the disappearance of civil rights in steel towns.

Chairman La Follette posed a basic question when he asked, "Do you think it improved industrial relations any for the company guards to shoot a pregnant woman two miles from a plant?" Mrs. Mary Reed, housewife of Canton, O., had testified she was seriously wounded by shot fired from a car loaded with Republic guards.

* * *

SECRECY

It is a strange thing, too, that companies which ordinarily could get a fair hearing from the public if they made known their facts openly, are "sold" by some public relations men on the "advisability" of secret propaganda, which usually boomerangs.

Read this dispatch in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "covering" the hearing with a special writer:

"Efforts of Youngstown steel companies to line up public opinion against the Committee for Industrial Organization through media which concealed identity of the steel companies as originators were detailed late today before the senate civil liberties investigation committee.

"Through testimony of Kenneth M. Lloyd, secretary of the Mahoning Valley Industrial council, an organization of one rubber and 11 steel companies, Chairman Robert M. La Follette, jr., (Prog.) of Wisconsin developed that the steel corporations largely financed a series of 13 advertisements designed to resist the C. I. O.'s steel organizing campaign.

"Lloyd said the Mahoning Valley council is a member of the National Industrial council which, he said, is closely allied with the National Association of Manufacturers.

"Although the council paid $5,280 of the total cost, its name did not appear on the advertisements as one of the sponsors. La Follette brought out that the council receives 74.8 per cent of its financial support from two steel companies, Republic Steel corporation and Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

"La Follette said other contributors to the cost of the advertisements, none of whose names was signed to them, . . .

"Lloyd, under persistent questioning, admitted that an October, 1936, 'civic progress' meeting, ostensibly sponsored by the Mahoning Valley Foremen's club, was actually inspired by the National Association of Manufacturers, which made plans, contributed $50 toward the cost and supplied without charge George E. Sokolsky, magazine writer, as chief speaker."

STRONG SUPPORT

Dictator Countries Face Debacle

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Signs are that the world's democractic countries now are about to have the economic laugh upon the dictatorially ruled nations which, for some time, have been enjoying the laugh on the democracies and particularly upon the United States.

Japan's recent cancellation of its undertaking to entertain the Occident at the Olympic games, due to inability to foot the bill, was a plain enough admission of the financial pinch which Nippon feels.

The other day the German stock market broke with a crash.

There are hints the Italian monetary inflation is approaching the danger point.

But American business is picking up and Britain and France are in the midst of no slump.

* * *

WE'RE "FREE."

National economics, especially in the United States, never have been very strictly regulated. They are subjected here to stricter regulation now than in the past. However, even yet our rules are loose in comparison wth Nazi-istic Germany's, Fascist Italy's and Japan's.

Maybe because of our lack of regimentation it is true that we have been afflicted by a series of depressions alternating with periods of prosperity, or out-and-out booms.

We have had one lately—our recession, so-called.

* * *

THEY BRAGGED.

Hitler and Mussolini have bragged loudly that Germany and Italy were as prosperous as ever, recessions elsewhere notwithstanding. They did seem so, too. They had no unemployment and looked to be doing fairly well.

Hitler's and Mussolini's version was that they had solved the problem of business cycles by the dictatorial method.

Japan did no bragging, but she had a war on her hands.

* * *

DICTATION FAILS.

Now, the truth is that governmental dictation does appear to be efficacious toward stalling off sudden economic fluctations.

But doesn't it tend toward a general, permanent decline in a country's living standard? Germany has run into a definite slump, from which it may not recover at all. Italy has not hit a conspicuous slump, but its living costs have been getting higher and higher and wages have not increased. With its decrease in buying power, a slump ahead is fairly predictable.

Japan, of course, is on the ragged edge of ruin—but that is on account of war; not necessarily because of bad civil economics.

* * *

ALL "IN THE RED."

In one respect the world's democracies, have, indeed, adopted a policy similar to the world's autocracies:

They are operating by running into debt.

This obviously is bad business for any government.

Still, the democracies have bigger assets than the autocracies against which to pile up debts.

Illustratively, Uncle Sam's resources are immensely greater than Germany's, Italy's or Japan's.

* * *

CRASH IMPENDING?

Forty billions has been mentioned as the maximum sum we can borrow safely and we are getting above it.

But we are only a little above it, considering our assets.

Germany and Italy, with few assets, are up to their necks.

The U. S., Britain and France can pay off, by a long, painful pull. Folk will trust them.

Germany's and Italy's credit will not be worth a picayune.

As for Japan's!—Oh, my!

* * *

A TUBULENT TRIO.

It will be an unfortunate situation nevertheless.

Germany, Italy and Japan will be a turbulent trio.

It will be a showdown between democracy and autocracy.

Guess what Russia's attitude will be. She is an important consideration.

Value of Cultivating a Hobby Explained By Physician

By IAGO GLADSON, M. D.

It has been said that "he who rides a hobby horse takes corrective exercise for his soul," and it is with this objective in mind that one should select and cultivate one's hobbies.

Individuals used to an active life who are forced into idleness by illness fare better when their tedium is relieved by some form of busy-ness not beyond the limits of their restricted powers.

It may be amusing to see a man who in full health manages affairs of large responsibility, propped up on a hospital bed and weaving on a miniature loom or working with small carving tools on a linoleum block.

At first, such "a temporarily shelved executive" may frown upon the child's work proposed by the diplomatic occupational therapist, but if he has the good sense to be persuaded, he is soon likely to develop an enthusiasm for his task.

But one neither needs nor should wait until he is hospitalized before developing a hobby. It is better to cultivate the hobby for itself rather than as a refuge.

Certain desiderata in hobbies are self-evident. For the man occupied in physical labor during his regular work, a laborious hobby would merely be like the proverbial postman's holiday walk. Such an individual might fare better with a hobby which is creative but which does not involve much physical effort.

On the other hand, the person whose occupation involves little physical activity would do well to cultivate a garden or develop such sports or holiday occupations as involve the expenditure of physical energy.

But one's hobby should not be looked upon as a holiday occupation. The hobby is rather a tribute to one's self and to one's intimate interests as against the numerous obligations which one must fulfill as a member of the family and of the community.

In general the creative hobby is to be preferred. Games to be followed as hobbies must be selected with great discrimination.

The highly competitive game is likely to be too much like everyday life, a continuous fight for attainment and accomplishment. The desired psychological effects of one's hobbies are satisfaction, mental peace, change in occupation and in mental absorption.

Wister On the Long, Long Trail.

To the present generation, Owen Wister was simply a shadowy name. The oldsters still recall with vivid delight the appearance of "The Virginian" thirty-six years ago. They may venture the opinion that it still would bring joy to younger readers. It is a timeless interpretation of the old West.

"When you call me that, smile!" commands the transplanted Virginian. What a line! One of many.

Twenty-one books are credited to Owen Wister in "Who's Who." "The Virginian" remains at the top. "The Virginian" and, for old Bullmoosers, "ooosevelt — The Story of a Friendship."

So Wister has gone up the long, long trail to join his old friend. When such men travel the long trail it is a shining way.

Young America Says---

Make Yourself Important.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS is a true story. You'd better read it. For you never can tell . . .

Mr. James Christopher McGrath—and that is not his real name—is making hand-tooled leather saddles. Humdingers! And is tickled as a kid. This statement may not seem remarkable. But wait—

Twelve months ago, James C. McGrath was a banker in a large, mid-west city. A pleasant chap in his early 40's, popular, hard working, well liked, seemingly content with his lot. One of those fellows you'd bet would plod along without a hitch to the end.

But you'd bet wrong. He didn't!

Last September, in the midst of one of those luncheon talks he did rather well, the prosperous and popular Mr. McGrath . . . beaming in smartly tailored chevoits and freshly plucked carnation . . . suddenly stopped, gulped, spilled himself into his chair and began to blubber. Sickening sound, that blubbering, with the room gone still as death. Not loud, not hard—just a helpless, hopeless mumbling like a lost kid . . . And that silent circle of staring eyes.

It broke in an instant, of course. They were all around him . . . trying to lift—! That was worse even than the blubber. For it was like lifting a wad of rags. He'd been a big fellow a minute before. Now, somehow, the core of him was gone . . .

No, it wasn't apoplexy or paralysis—or anything the family Doc could check. At last, after the usual delays, someone called a neurologist. Maybe a nervous breakdown? But the idea seemed screwy. Good old Jim nervous! Wotta joke! But blubbering business men, the doctor assured them were not quite as comic as they might seem. To the contrary, they were one of the most tragic spectacles in this age of regimentation and personal frustration.

But what, they gaped, had good old Jim to feel frustrated about? Possibly, the doctor replied, the sense of his own failure. But Jim wasn't a failure? Not from an economic viewpoint, perhaps; but there were other lacks far harder to take than a scarcity of cash. For instance, the gnawing sense of one's own unimportance. The feeling that one didn't mean anything in particular . . . that one was just a cog in the machine.

Dangerous business, feeling like that. As deadly as slow poison. For people were meant to feel important. Everyone needed "a place in the sun" . . . no matter how small. That was the basic law. And nature took her revenge if the law was broken.

YOU COULDN'T GO ON FEELING THAT YOU DIDN'T PARTICULARLY MATTER, WITHOUT SOMETHING SNAPPING. THAT WAS NATURE'S WAY OF GETTING EVEN. IF YOU WEREN'T IMPORTANT IN A HEALTHY WAY SHE'D MAKE YOU IMPORTANT IN AN UNHEALTHY WAY . . . THROUGH SICKNESS OR MADNESS, SOMETIMES THROUGH CRIME.

But surely if anything like that had been eating Jim, he'd have known it. Not necessarily. We moderns fool ourselves. Duck the truth even if it's handed us. Live at such a pace—either plugging or playing—that there's no time to face facts. "Escapists," most of us. Hating the stereotyped lives we're living . . . longing to be something different, something better, yet never really doing anything about it except to run away, into more work or more play.

But you can't run away forever. Someday you have to stop. Maybe in the middle of a luncheon speech . . . with the tears you've never admitted, boiling up and over . . . and your real self crying out, like a lost child—crying for the chance it had never had.

But wasn't there a cure? Yes, provided you could get at it in time. Sometimes things went so far that the sick mind didn't want a cure . . . had learned to use its own despair as a sort of racket to obtain attention or pity or special exemption. But the others—the ones who really wanted to snap out of it—they could be cured by finding something at which they could excel. Usually something outside their regular job. Painting. Dancing. Modeling. Studying economics. Anything that would build up that lost sense of importance . . . make you feel that you and your life meant something.

So Mr. James C. McGrath is making hand-tooled leather saddles. Humdingers. And is as tickled as a kid. Some think it's a crazy sort of a fad But a few others remember a big man stopping in the midst of a speech . . . gulping . . . spilling himself into his chair . . . beginning to blubber.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

OLD LYME, Conn.—Today is the day we say good by to this lovely community and wander on back to the hot sidewalks of New York. Boy, I bet New York is hot right now. It's hot here too but there is a sea breeze and there is a difference between simply being warm and being parched like a hapless peanut in desiccating heat that leaves you wilted and limp.

This morning we drove for miles through this land of shutters and stone fences. All the houses here have shutters, which help close out the severe winters, and all the roads have stone fences, built by hand and intended to outlast Time itself.

I asked my hostess why one sees so few stone fences in the paintings around here and she had a very good answer for it. She had asked Winfield Scott Clime the same question, and Clime replied: "Stone fences are very difficult to paint. Unless you are very good at painting the individual stones they look like piles of biscuits or Irish potatoes."

* * *

AN INTERESTING point not far from the Inn is the old Peck's Tavern, built in 1662. It is the second oldest house in Connecticut and today it is used by the Old Lyme Guild as a clearing-house for antiques.

In the old days this was the stopping-off place between New York and Boston. The old Franklin road ran by here, and the weary travelers would refresh themselves at Peck's Tavern with ale and steaming food, and a dance in the evening. The dances were held on the second story, and the walls of the rooms were hung on hinges so that when a ballroom of sufficient size was needed they simply unhooked the partitions between the rooms and hoisted them to the ceiling.

And now it's time to throw that extra pair of socks into a bag and get on down to the station. I still don't know what to think of Connecticut, or rather this part of Connecticut, because the pictures are too jumbled. Only in the south have I seen such abundant foliage, which surprised me, this being so near salt water. But this is explained by the nightly occurrence of heavy dews, which is ideal for the cultivation of flowers.

* * *

ALL of New England is famous for its lobster dinners and this is no exception. These are Maine lobsters, young and tender. Where the turkeys come from I wouldn't know, although I did pass a turkey farm down the road a piece and had to stop the car till the old gobblers and the hens and their myriad of young got safely across.

Incidentally, turkeys take their time crossing a road. They aren't like chickens. They know the other side of the road is going to be there when they reach it no matter how long they take. So they take plenty of it. And if you try to shoo them they give you a gobble and look at you as if they think you are crazy.

Sitting here in the drowsy shade of mid-afternoon you wouldn't think that noisy, bangy old New York is only 125 miles away. Right now it seems at the end of the world.

Well, I gotta go. They're waiting downstairs, and pretty soon the 4:35 will be coming round the bend. I have a feeling I'm going to be feeling awful sorry for myself this time next week, with those berserk taxi drivers lunging at me and the thermometer touching 96 in the shade.

DAVEY OUSTER PETITION HERE

Committee Seeking to Remove Governor Extends Drive Into County.

The Removal Committee of Columbus seeking the political scalp of Gov. Martin L. Davey extended its ouster drive into Richland county today.

While no plans had been made for the opening of an office here, at least one of the organization's petitions had made its appearance in Mansfield.

The petitions are being circulated by Thomas W. McGlinchey of Columbus, chairman of the committee which has already set up "removal" headquarters in several of the larger cities.

Addressed to the court of appeals, Franklin county, the petition reads:

"We, the undersigned electors of the state of Ohio respectfully petition that the governor of Ohio, to-wit, Martin L. Davey, be removed from office for the following reasons:

1.—That he has wilfully and flagrantly exercised authority not authorized by law in that he has caused or permitted a tax or sum of money to be collected from state employes contrary to law for political purposes.

2.—That he has refused and wilfully neglects to enforce the law relating to civil service employes of the state of Ohio, in that he has caused them to be subject to an assessment or tax on their income for political purposes, and that such acts may be deemed misconduct in office, and that on a hearing thereon, as provided by law, that we, the undersigned may have judgment for forfeiture of said office against Martin L. Davey, that said office be declared vacant, and filled in the manner prescribed by law."

How many had signed the petition here could not be learned today.

CHAPTER XIV

Frank Armstrong interrupted with "Miss Hunt hasn't become very well acquainted with pay days yet, Mr. Roper. She'll get over that. I'll get her started for home now."

He snatched up the check that Roper had laid on the lounge beside Ray, opened her handbag and dropped it inside. He assisted her to her feet and guided her by the elbow from the room. She was boiling with indignation but trying not to show it. It would be interesting to see what this conceited man would do next.

He pressed the button for the elevator, then turned to her severely. "You shouldn't have come down here, Ray," he told her.

She glared up at him, bit her lower lip. The elevator came before she had time to make the sharp retort she thought he deserved. And presently, walking along the street, her silence was more cruel to Frank than speech. He was deeply chagrined by her attitude.

"Are you still hurt, Ray?" he asked. "I only wanted to—"

"You might explain why Mr. Roper was dressing you down just before you found me outside the door," she suggested tartly.

"Did you hear that? The shock of it couldn't have made you faint, could it, dear?"

* * *

She looked straight ahead, began walking faster, but did not reply.

He explained. "That was Roper's way of letting off steam. I've a certain theory about a case and he thinks I'm all wet. In the end, I intend to prove I'm on the right track."

"What's become of that awful looking waiter you caught last night?" she asked him.

"He's still locked up. They're trying to get a confession out of him—but he won't talk."

"Are you specially keen to have him—talk?"

"Good gosh — why not? See here, Ray—what are you driving at?"

"How do you do!" interrupted a well-groomed, heavy-set man, who had stopped directly before Ray. "You're a pretty sight for tired old eyes, young lady."

Frank knew the man by sight. It was Hal's father, Gordon Williams, a man whose lucky star, to the amazement of staid business men, had sent him soaring into the millionaire class through the oil industry.

Ray introduced Frank to him.

"Glad to meet you, young fellow—fine girl you're with. My boy's taken a fancy to her, too." Gordon Williams nudged Frank in the ribs, threw his head back and laughed.

Ray flushed to her temples but smiled pleasantly. Gordon Williams was as crude as his oil but Ray was fond of him.

"Did Hal tell you about his new yacht?" he asked. "He figured you ought to like it, Ray. He's getting up a party for a trip on it right away. He'd like to have you join the other young folks, Mr. Armstrong."

"Thanks," Frank said quietly. "I know it must be a beautiful boat, Mr. Williams," Ray put in quickly. "It's wonderful of you to give Hal so much. I—hope he appreciates it."

* * *

A peculiar expression crossed Gordon Williams' ruddy, round face. He cleared his throat loudly, then said, "Oh, well—you know Hal. He never says much in words—but his heart's in the right place."

"You deserve the best kind of a son," said Ray noncommittally.

"Atta gal! Always saying the right thing! Hope I'll be meeting up with you two again. Have to get back to the office—there's a few things the boss has to see to."

He laughed again and waved a plump hand as he strode away.

Frank said quickly, "I'm sorry, dear—but I'll have to get back to the jail and see what I can do with that waiter. I can't take you to lunch—as much as I'd like to. I'll put you in a taxi. You'd better go home and rest."

"Of course," she replied, exasperated to find herself nothing but a minor clog in this exciting wheel of detection.

They waited at the curb for a cruising taxi. Frank went on, "You should take a trip—as far away as possible."

She turned to him in astonishment. "You advise my going for a cruise on Hal's magnificent new boat, I presume," she got out sarcastically.

"Decidedly not! Go to —Europe on a fast boat—or to the west coast — any place that's a good distance away."

She did some rapid thinking. Did he want her out of the way for personal reasons? Doubt of him began to tear again at her love for him. She said, unsteadily, "Why should I go?"

"Because—I'd like you to be absent when things break wide open," he stated plainly.

"But the reason — what reason—"

A taxi stopped beside them now. Frank opened the door and assisted her to enter. "Good-bye, darling," he said hastily, raising his hat. "Better take my advice—immediately."

He gave her address to the driver and closed the door.

* * *

She sat stiffly in the seat as the gears meshed, staring uncomprehendingly at him. She could not force her lips to smile back at him, certainly not to thank him.

The taxi lurched forward, leaving him standing there on the sidewalk, looking big and strong and handsome in his brown overcoat, looking as if nothing but honor and high aspirations could ever be associated with him.

Ray sighed heavily and leaned back against the hard leather cushions. She wondered why human features could not be more readable. If a man outside the law always looked like one, it would simplify everything so much. Frank was so suavely innocent acting. He appeared to have a cultural background, yet never had he given her any information concerning his past life or his family. This counted heavily against him. Even so, her suspicions of him wavered with shocking regularity.. Oh, why was she such a perfect chump!

The sky suddenly became overcast, and soon it began to rain. Big drops splashed against the taxi window, rolled like glycerine tears down the smooth panes. The very elements seemed to be weeping in sympathy with her torn, rebellious heart.

Upon arriving home, she found Hal Williams lunching with her Aunt Lucy in the stately dining room. Ray thrust aside her surprise and joined them, outwardly her usual composed self.

Mrs. Yates greeted her with, "My dear—you're just in time! Hal and I were wishing you'd come in — we've the loveliest plans! Sit down and have luncheon with us."

"Plans? Really?" Ray was worried but she dropped into the chair beside hal.

Jarvis placed a hot kidney pie and stuffed tomato salad before her, then disappeared.

Hal exclaimed, "Wait until you hear! It's the cruise, you know. Now, darling—if you'll agree to making it a wedding on board—we'll take the whole crowd with us on our honeymoon. Wouldn't that be unique?"

"It sounds exciting," came from Lucy Yates, flinging Ray a quick glance across the pink gladioli between them.

Ray hesitated. Then she said slowly, "It does sound exciting, Auntie — but — I'm not sure I should marry Hal."

"Silly darling!" he protested. "Why not? I'll spend the rest of my life making you happy. The boat is ready to take off—we'll be married tonight!"

Ray tore her gaze fom his dark magnetic eyes. She jumped up, stammering, "I—I'll have to—have to think. I'll let you know—later," and rushed from the room.

* * *

The telephone rang as she flung into her sitting room. She snatched up the receiver and sank down on the chaise lounge beside the telephone stand.

"Ray—this is Frank. When are you leaving town?" he sounded anxious.

"My plans are—very indefinite," came from her coolly.

"But can't you understand—I want you to go—I think it would be best. I'll come up and get you—put you on a train—within an hour.

"Why the unheard of speed?" she asked, thoroughly incensed now. "Anyone would think I had to run away from something. What have I done?"

"Be reasonable, Ray! Can't you realize that if you stay in town, you'll be dragged into an unpleasant mess?"

"Yes, it's quite plain to me now," she answered wearily.

She thought dully, "He wants to get me away before he's exposed and her heart sank to such depths as it had never known before.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Small, Perky Hat Attractive For Wear With Suits

The perky little hat that goes well with the smart tailored summer suit, the one of two-piece dress or with spectator sports clothes never was more becoming and imbued with more youthful gaiety. Combinations of material such as the gray straw with the felt crown worn by Jane Bryant, left, is a favorite. It is simply banded with grosgrain ribbon finished in a bow. Still another pet is the white felt worn by Marie Wilson, right. Banded with black toyo straw and with a feather for trimming, it is a clever little chapeau.

MARION GIRL BRIDE OF HOWARD JOHNSON

Couple Married at First Methodist Episcopal Church Parsonage by Rev. E. G. Corwin Saturday Morning.

FOLLOWING the return of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson last night from a wedding trip to Indiana, their marriage of Saturday, July 23, was revealed. Mrs. Johnson, the former Miss Pearl Mitchell, is the daughter of Mrs. L. E. Wygle, Marion. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mrs. Winifred Johnson, 173 Sycamore street.

The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the First Methodist Episcopal church with Rev. E. G. Corwin officiating. The couple was married in an unattended ceremony at 10 a.m.

For her marriage the bride wore a white sharkskin suit with brown accessories. Her corsage was made of gardenias and roses. Mrs. Johnson, who was employed at the Dominion Electric company, made her home in Mansfield on Spring street. Mr. Johnson is also employed at the Dominion Electric company.

Mr. and Mrs Johnson will make their home here.

ROUTINE SESSION.

Members of Delta Theta Tau held a brief routine business meeting last night at the public library. Plans were made for a swimming party to be held at Galion Aug. 8. Members will meet in Galion for the affair.

MORE SPACE.

An extension towel bar with two extra rods is a marvelous convenience for bathrooms with limited wall space. It can be hooked onto the towel bar temporarily to furnish additional space for guest towels, or be permanently attached to provide room for the individual towels and wash cloths that are prime cleanliness requirements for every member of the family.

A perfect dress for torrid days is a printed dimity in bright florals on white. The bright colors of the print are reflected in the braid which pipes the square neckline and front of this frock.

Fete Mrs. Tedrick At Dinner Party

A group of business associates of Mrs T. J Tedrick's honored her last night at a dinner party and shower given by Miss Frances Sferro at her home, 29 East Sixth street. Covers were laid for 12 guests.

Following the serving of dinner at a table decorated with a color scheme of pink and blue, the guests were led to the wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Tedrick then served the dessert.

The ringing of an alarm clock directed the guest of honor to her shower gifts. The remainder of the evening was spent socially. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Homer Enders, Crestline, and Miss Loduska Gaber, Caledonia. Mrs. Tedrick was Miss Doris Tucker before her recent marriage.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs W. L. Seemuth, Woodland road, left Sunday for Atlanta, Ga., and Florida, where they will spend the autumn and winter.

A Message to Buyers of Dry-Cleaning

It is the job of this organization to protect the public against illegitimate and fraudulent business enterprises.

That's why we have been advising you recently about a number of "fly-by-night" and "cut-rate" dry-cleaners who are engaged in making a door to door canvas of the city.

Hundreds of people here and elsewhere who have been victimized by these companies, have learned that "low price" does not mean "low cost" and that damaged or ruined garments and poor workmanship cannot be offset by a few cents in the first cost.

Save money—patronize Mansfield's own dry cleaners; they are here to stay, they are dependable and they spend the money you pay them right here in Mansfield.
